'Combines' Tie Belleville Jrs.

Over 600 Fans Witness Exciting Game at Local Arena — Trenton Here Monday

Stirling-Marmora "Combines" maintained their unbeaten record on their home ice when they battled the fast-stepping Belleville sextette to an even break at the Henry St. Ice Palace on Monday night. The game was witnessed by over six hundred fans who were treated to a splendid exhibition of hockey.

The visitors presented a well-balanced squad with Al Gordon, star forward, being the best man on the ice for either team. Although he didn't score any goals, being closely watched by the locals, he was dangerous every time he gained possession of the puck and set up the play that tied the score in the waning moments of the game in a most impressive fashion. Holway was also prominent for the visitors scoring two of their goals, but spoiled his display by too much dirty work along the boards. Bush and Rosetti formed a strong defence, with Fitzpatrick playing his usual good game in the nets.

For the "Combines" the line of Cousins, Goodchild and Tremble played hard aggressive hockey, and caught the fancy of the home town fans with their up-and-at-'em display. The line of the Bastedo brothers and Patterson were below form in the first two periods, but they came to life in the final period and grabbed off two goals, one each by the Bastedo boys. McIntosh and Utman, along with Leonard and Lavender played a good game on defence while McIntroy played a sound game in the nets. The game was well handled by Bill Shannon, of Marmora.

While no scoring registered in a fast close-checking first period Belleville forged to the lead, when Don Barrett scored on a three-way combination play with Moher and Wardhaugh early in the middle frame. Two minutes later Goodchild even matters with a snapshot on a pass-out from Cousins, but Belleville came back strong with Holway beating McIntroy in the homesters' net, on a pass from B. Meagher.

Early in the last stanza Doug. Bastedo evened the count and knotted the game up at two-all when he deflected a shot by brother Bert into the net behind Fitzpatrick. With the game tied up the visitors elected to roughen the play up and Referee Shannon put the clamps on in no uncertain fashion. With Semark off for crashing Cousins into the end boards, B. Bastedo worked out from the corner to push the puck into the Belleville net and put the Combines one up midway through the period.

Al Gordon broke loose for Belleville and with some nice stick-handling pulled the Combines defence aside and passed to Billie Holway, who made sure of his count late in the last period to tie the score. There was no overtime played.

The lineups:

Belleville: Goal, Fitzpatrick; defence, Rosetti and Bush; centre, Moher; wings, J. Wardhaugh and Barrett; subs, Holway, Gordon, Meagher, Day, Semark, Greatrix and Rollins.

Stirling-Marmora "Combines" — Goal, McIntroy; defence, Utman and McIntosh; centre, Bert Bastedo; wings, Patterson and D. Bastedo; subs, Cousins, Goodchild, Tremble, Lavender, Leonard and Pycar.

Referee—Bill Shannon.

Hog Producers Elect Officers

Discuss Grade And Price of Hogs — Wilfred Spencer Chosen President For Year

On April 2nd, 1943, a Hog Producer's Meeting was held in Hastings County at which time a provisional executive and directors were appointed. This executive carried on during the summer. On January 23rd there was a meeting held in the Department of Agriculture Office, Stirling, at which a permanent executive and directors were appointed, for 1944.

A general discussion took place on the grading and price of hogs. The meeting expressed its appreciation to the Dominion Department of Agriculture for the recently announced premiums on quality hogs. The meeting felt, however, that these premiums did not add sufficiently to the general price structure to give farmers very much encouragement to increase hog production. It was felt that the price of hogs, F.O.B., dressed weight, Toronto, should be at least 20c a lb. and a resolution to this effect was passed to be forwarded to the secretary of the Ontario Hog Producer's Association.

The election of officers resulted as follows:—

President—Wilfred Spencer, Campbellford, No. 3.

Vice-pres.—E. J. Pycar, Stirling, 3.

Sec.-Treas.—H. L. Fair, Stirling.

GOOD LOCATION FOR SANATORIUM

The announcement that the Provincial Department of Health is considering the erection of a sanatorium to serve this section of the province has resulted in much speculation as to its location. In this connection what is wrong with Hastings County? Coming closer home, what finer site for such an institution could be found anywhere than Oak Lake? Situated on top of a high range of wooded hills, this inland lake overlooks the valley of the Trent River and some of the finest agricultural land in the province. There are few places in all Ontario as lovely. It has many other favorable aspects which might well be brought to the attention of the Provincial Department of Health.

FAIR BOARD REORGANIZED

Meeting in session on Wednesday last, the Stirling Agricultural Society, comprising farmers of the surrounding community and a number of public-spirited citizens of the village decided to sponsor once again the Annual Fall Fair during the month of September next. The Society will also endeavour to have the Hastings County Holstein Friesian Breeders' Club stage its annual "Black and White" Day in conjunction with the Fair. The "Black and White Day" has been a feature of the local fair for some years and last year one of the finest exhibits of cattle ever shown in this section of the province was on display. A field crop competition in Oats will be sponsored by the Society and the committee in charge are already taking steps to procure a supply of government tested seed for this project. Plans were also made for holding the annual Ice Carnival on Monday, February 14th.

The local Agricultural Society has come through some difficult years, but has always paid its obligations in full. The reports presented at the annual meeting were most encouraging, showing the outstanding indebtedness of the society substantially reduced and a good balance on hand. As a result a spirit of optimism prevailed as the Board of Directors made their plans for the coming year.

The primary purpose of an Agricultural organization is to promote Agriculture and the reports presented at Wednesday's meeting gave ample proof that the Stirling Society is ably fulfilling the mission for which it was instituted. The one regrettable feature is the absence of support for the fair from the farming community surrounding the village. The business men of Stirling, at no hope of gain to themselves, contribute heavily, both in cash and goods, to the prize list which is offered principally for products of the farm, and yet many farmers fail to appreciate their efforts.

The Board of Directors is headed again by C. I. Hatton, as president, while the executive and Board of Directors, with a few exceptions, are the same as last year. Given the support of the farmers of the surrounding district and Stirling citizens, the local fair can be made the best in the district.

DEMAND FOR WASTE PAPER STILL ACUTE

There is still a great need for waste paper in all its forms to further the war effort of the United Nations. The present global war has taught us lessons in the use of paper and paper packages that in pre-war days would have been termed fabulous.

The time was, and not so very long ago, when a paper box was merely a container designed to convey its contents to destination without scuff or breakage. Today paper containers have gone to war and have met the enemy on every front, on land and sea, in the Arctic in the tropics, in the swamps and underneath the sea.

In ordinary times newspapers, paper boxes, etc., were looked upon as of trifling value and were burned to get rid of them. Today it is different. Below are listed a number of uses paper is put to in war:

To be thrown overboard for landing operations, float to shore to sink to the bottom to be recovered at low tide.

To provide adequate protection for the valuable contents such as medical kits, Blood Plasma, emergency rations, gas masks and for hundreds of other Naval, Army and Air Force uses.

Paper parachutes, strong enough to convey to earth precious food and supplies for isolated men and units are now in use on many fronts.

Containers made from treated papers capable of forming a package liner that will contain and hold high volatile solvent vapors such as naphtha and benzene.

Fibre paint cans are now in wide-spread use, saving tons of metal for vital war purposes.

Treated paper electrical conduits are replacing metal and wood.

Paper containers for shells, grenades, fuses, etc.

Paper containers for dehydrated foods, saving the cargo space of a ship. Beef, potatoes, eggs, milk, pork, etc., when dehydrated and compressed and packed in paper containers (cartons) means a saving of about 85% of cargo space.

Paper containers for canisters are used for transporting powder in shell-filling plants, the T.N.T. tubes and shell components.

Ack-ack shells, airplane propellers, bombs, require substantial paperboard containers.

A VICIOUS SYSTEM

Elgin County Council has taken up the cudgels on behalf of the rural mail carriers, urging that the system of tendering should be discontinued and a basic rate per mile be established. This has been suggested by the News-Argus from time to time in the past because the tender system is a vicious one. No matter how efficient a mail carrier may be, there is usually some one willing to offer to do the work at a lesser salary, and too often the postal authorities accept the lowest tender. Some one has said, that the mail carriers are the poorest paid civil servants in Canada, and there is plenty of evidence to bear out the assertion.

YESTERDAY, TODAY AND TOMORROW

There are two days in every week about which we should not worry—two days which should be kept free from fear and apprehension.

One of these days is yesterday with its mistakes and cares, its faults and blunders. All the money in the world cannot bring back yesterday.

The other day we should not worry about is tomorrow, with its possible adversities, its burdens, its large promise and poor performance. Tomorrow also is beyond our immediate control. Tomorrow's sun will rise either in splendour or behind a mask of clouds—but it will rise. Until it does we have no stake in tomorrow, for it is as yet unborn.

That leaves only one day—today. Any man can fight the battles of just one day. It is only when you and I add the burdens of those two awful eternities—yesterday and tomorrow—that we break down.

It is not the experience of today that drives men mad—it is remorse or bitterness for something which happened yesterday and the dread of what tomorrow may bring. Let us, therefore, journey but one day at a time.

RELUCTANT BUSYBODIES

Isolationists are ignorant and even bad people who helped to get the war started and who hinder getting it finished. They are opponents of the Christian doctrine of the brotherhood of man. They have to be uprooted and shaken loose from their parochialism or they will help to bring on still another war. Yet there were some very appealing features to isolationism. The man who minded his own business, did not poke his nose into others' affairs, hoed his own row—he was an isolationist. The family man who stayed home in the evenings and played with the children was an isolationist. Now his boy is in Italy and his wife's folding bandages at the Red Cross and he is running around on war jobs so much that he gets home only to change his shirt. All the members of the family have become interventionist, with formerly unknown foreign places burned into their minds. Places like Ortona and San Tommaso and Pescara. Right now the family are thinking more vividly about that Adriatic coastal highway than about their own home. But they have abandoned isolationism only to protect that home and other homes like it. If you could catch the members of this busy family long enough to ask them questions, they would probably say that isolationism was a bad thing, but that they would like to have a chance at a bit of it again at home by their fireplace, eating popcorn perhaps, and letting the world go hang.—Printed Word.

No indication will present the necessary legislation to make this deduction but it is hardly likely to come into effect during the current year.

What Others Say

Women are now eligible for the V.C. And considering some of the awful chances they take, it ought to go with the wedding ring, as a badge of outstanding bravery.—T.P.D. in Ottawa Citizen.

NEVER SATISFIED

Human nature is a contrary thing. Last winter we complained at the severity of the winter. So much snow no one could get into the bush to cut wood. This year the complaint is that there isn't enough snow to haul the wood out. To the wails of the sports-loving younger generation is now added the note that the absence of the snow blanket on the fields presages poor crops this year. For our part, we make no complaint. The winter has been ideal from a fuel-saving standpoint, and brother, are we thankful!—Winchester Press.

IT GRIPES THE TOMMIES

From a letter by an American soldier in Africa: "It gave me a funny feeling to see some newsmen of the Tunisian war and to be sitting next to men who had fought in the same campaign. There were also many photos of and praise of guys like Eisenhower, Patton, etc., with no pictures or comment on Alexander, Montgomery, etc., who everybody over here knows were responsible for the entire victory practically. It sort of gripes the Tommies, and I don't blame them a bit.—Nation, N.Y."

UNCLE HY.

The shovel that I bought last year is now a mess with rust, for I have no snow to move, no galluses to bust, and though this suits me very well, I'll not be caught you bet, for weather's a deceiving thing, we may have much snow yet.

Some night when we are all in bed, the still and quiet hours, the little sixties will come back, to stop the summery showers, and they will dress the earth again, in garments white and plain, and they will leave their artistry on every window pane.

But winter then cannot be long, the calendar will tell, no winter with its old back broke, can e'er again be well, and it will die, and we'll be glad, as comes the time for birds, and bees and flowers and sun and trout—too glorious for words.—H. M. Moore in Trenton Courier-Advocate.

District Fairs Meeting

Fred Denyes, of Brighton, was re-elected President of the District Fairs Association for the current year, at the annual meeting of the organization held in Belleville on Friday last. Vice-presidents named were Kenneth Vivian, Shannonville and Elmer Sandercock of Belleville. District director is Mr. Ben Blecker, past-president of Belleville Fair. Secretary Treasurer is Miss Margaret Lapp, of Brighton.

Lady delegates to the Central Fairs Association also met during the day and as a result of discussion recommended that women directors of fairs should be supplied with badges to wear. They also wanted to see more emphasis placed on children's work and recommended to all societies that this be placed in their prize lists. Mrs. Fred Meyers was re-appointed as district director.

Mr. J. A. Carroll, Supt. of Ontario Fairs Association was the special speaker and in speaking of fair procedure indicated the cattle rings a splendid idea and served to "get the cattle out of the fence corner." He stated a fair is first of all educational and that cattle should be judged when spectators are around and not in the mornings. Promptness of running off events served to maintain interest. Good races help to bring the crowds while good agricultural exhibits were essential.

Because trouble of obtaining a suitable midway had been experienced in many centres fair directors had demonstrated that home attractions could hold the interest of crowds. Horse drawing contests were gaining in popularity while sawing competitions had their place and novelty attractions had gone over big in some centres.

Grants would be continued for field crop competitions according to the superintendent and he advised all societies to continue this branch of activities as there never was a time when good seed would be in greater demand than in the immediate future.

MANUFACTURER'S LIFE ANNUAL REPORT

In its 57th Annual Report the Manufacturers Life Insurance Company reports 295,454 policies in force for a total of $727 million, an average of $2,462 per policy. Of this business approximately 44% is in Canada and 56% outside Canada.

27,408 new policies of life insurance were issued during 1943 for an aggregate of $82,750,000 and 301 new immediate annuity contracts for a premium consideration of $2,900,000.

For the fulfillment of these contracts, the Company has assets under administration now totalling over $241,000,000.

During each working day of Manufacturers Life disbursed $43,787 in death claims, matured endowments, annuity payments and other benefits, for a total for the year of $13,400,000.

INTRODUCING NEW BRITAIN AND NEW IRELAND

Far-away lands, New Britain and New Ireland, are the subjects of a new exhibit in the Royal Ontario Museum. Natural and man-made objects from these tropical islands introduce the Museum visitor to the strange environment where United Nations' soldiers now fight.

Both these islands are clothed with a luxuriant and varied vegetation. In the forests live gaudy, red-and-green parrots, brilliant fruit pigeons and handsome kingfishers. On the coral reefs that fringe the shores live bizarre and fantastically beautiful shellfish. Some have deadly stings; the shells of others serve the natives as money.

The dark-skinned natives are primarily agriculturists and fishermen. Their crops include taro, yams and breadfruit. The dog and the pig are the only domesticated animals. Until a few years ago, stone and shell were used exclusively for tools and with these tools they skillfully worked with wood to make their houses, utensils and weapons. The weapons of modern fighting men—aeroplanes, machine-guns, warships, etc.—must seem strange indeed to these primitive people.

Some Facts From the 57th ANNUAL REPORT

295,454 MANUFACTURERS LIFE POLICIES are now providing security for people in all walks of life. These policies are for an average amount of $2,462, giving total protection of $727,387,966.

EACH OF THESE POLICIES has a share in a fund of $241,424,890—the assets under administration to guarantee their fulfilment.

FOR THOUSANDS OF BENEFICIARIES and policyowners, Manufacturers Life cheques lifted pressing financial burdens during 1943. Every working day $43,787 was disbursed by the Company for a total of $13,442,478. Beneficiaries of deceased policyowners received $4,937,295 and living policyowners, $8,505,183.

SINCE INCORPORATION IN 1887 the Manufacturers Life has paid a total of $288,800,187 to its policyowners and their beneficiaries.

NEWS FOR THE BUSY FARMER

SUMMARY OF PROCEEDINGS, ONTARIO AGRICULTURAL COMMISSION OF INQUIRY

Important decisions with reference to the development of a hog marketing scheme for Ontario under the provisions of the Farm Products Control Act, and the improvement of organization of milk producers in the Province were reached during a week's session of the Ontario Agricultural Commission of Inquiry. In addition, the Commission gave further study to the composition and organization of County Committees, the more equitable distribution of gasoline to farmers, particularly fruit and vegetable farmers with less than 50 acres of land, and committees of the commission continued their inquiries into methods of soil and water conservation, farm credit and a grain policy for Ontario.

A proposed scheme for hog marketing under the Farm Products Control Act was presented by a deputation from the Ontario Hog Producers Association, with Wilfred L. Bishop of Norwich, secretary of the Association, as the chief speaker. The Commission not only discussed this thoroughly with the deputation, but also held several sessions to give it complete hogs is a very complex problem, which can only be evolved after a great deal of careful thought and preparation.

(3) That the launching of such a scheme without adequate thought and preparation might have serious effects upon the future development of marketing schemes in general effects marketing schemes in general and the development of a hog scheme in particular.

Therefore, the Commission is of the opinion that the scheme as now presented cannot be endorsed, for the following reasons.

(1) It proposes to regulate the marketing of hogs but does not set forth any specific regulations for that purpose.

(2) It proposes to establish prices for live hogs and hog carcasses by negotiation, even though the effective control of prices for hogs is largely beyond the powers of action of a provincial body.

(3) The proposal fails to effect such control of prices as does rest within the powers of a provincial body by failure to provide a specific regulation for directing the movement of hogs to market.

Following on this recommendation, the Marketing Committee of the Commission entered upon a study of the problems of hog marketing and spent a whole day in consideration of the problems of loading, transportation and shipping, matters which might properly be brought under regulations in a scheme.

The Commission also spent considerable time dealing with an application of the Ontario Whole Milk League and other milk producers organizations for a plan whereby the Milk Control Act might be amended to permit a collection of fees from all milk producers, to be used for the furtherance of the industry through study. While the scheme as presented was not endorsed, it was found to have sufficient merit to warrant further study and the following recommendation was adopted to be forwarded to the Minister of Agriculture for Ontario and the Ontario Hog Producers' Association.

"The Commission has had placed before it for consideration a hog marketing scheme under the Farm Products Control Act and has reached the following conclusions:

(1) That the officers of the Ontario Hog Producers Association are to be congratulated upon the energy and enthusiasm with which they have worked for their fellow-producers and the results attained to date.

(2) While it is recognized that a considerable amount of useful work had been done by the officers of the Association, it must also be recognized that the development of a satisfactory marketing scheme to cover a project so vast as the marketing of its local and provincial associations. After lengthy discussion, the Commission finally adopted the following recommendation:

"Whereas it is desirable and expedient that provision be made for the licensing of producers of milk in Ontario now operating under the provisions of the Milk Control Act and the regulations thereunder, so that the customary assessments and collections for the purpose of meeting the legitimate expenses of the local and provincial associations of such producers shall be made in the most equitable and complete manner,

"And whereas the Milk Control Board has already the power to make regulations for the licensing of persons engaged in the milk trade—

"The Commission Therefore Recommends:

(1) That the Milk Control Act be amended so as to provide for the licensing of producers of milk and the collection from them of license fees;

(2) That provision be made for the collection of the license fee by deductions made by the distributor or processor to whom the original sale of milk is made, such deduction to be made from the monthly cheque payable to the producers by the said distributor or processor.

(3) That the amount of such license fee shall be determined from time to time by the local producers' associations for their respective market areas;

(4) That before any collection from any market area is authorized, the Milk Control Board must be satisfied that such collection is approved by a reasonable majority of the milk producers in such market area;

(5) That the license fees so collected shall be paid over by the distributors and processors to the provincial body representative of the Milk Producers, which shall be responsible for remitting the proper share to the local associations of producers.

(6) That the monies derived from the license fees shall be used by the said associations for their legitimate expenses and for the maintenance of services of benefit to the producers, but such services shall not include the creation of any capital funds to be used for business enterprises."

In its discussion of country committees the Commission approved a recommendation that the members of these committees who are the appointees of farm organizations shall be elected annually and that this election shall take place at an annual meeting of these organizations, meeting jointly, and called to receive the annual reports of the country committees.

A suggestion was also approved that the country committees should have the power to require the registration of acreage and production within the country, in order to make available adequate information on which to base orderly marketing practices.

The Farm Credit Committee made a study of the development and operations of the Ontario Agricultural

Mr. Finlay has been responsible for many of the corporation's most notable broadcasts, began his radio career in the technical field with Marconi in Montreal, and joined the program division of CBC at Vancouver, in 1937. The Grain and Field Crop Committee began a study of a grain policy for Ontario with particular references to the use of a grain policy as a building for the livestock industry of Ontario.

The Commission will meet again for another week's session on February 14, while in the meantime the Livestock Committee is holding hearings at Clinton, Chatham and London in order to secure the views of livestock producers in these areas.

CHANGES MADE IN HOG MARKETING

Hon. James G. Gardiner has announced that following discussions concerning the marketing of hogs between the Bacon Advisory Committee, the Advisory Committee on Agriculture, the Meat Board and the Agricultural Food Board, it has been decided to make a number of changes in the system of hog marketing.

The producer under which a basic price was established for B-1 hog carcasses and prices for other grades determined by applying discounts except in the case of Grade A carcasses for which a premium was paid by the Packers, will be discontinued and hogs will be purchased on the basis of their carcass values in the various grades. Government premiums, as already announced, will be paid in the case of Grade A carcasses at $3.00 per carcass, and in the case of Grade B-1 at $2.00 per carcass. The premium of $1.00 formerly paid by the Packers on Grade A carcasses will be paid on the carcass grade value for export bacon.

The number of grades has been reduced by consolidating some of them. The grades now adopted are Grade A, Grades B-1, B-2 and B-3, all B. Grades to sell at the same market price. There will be one C Grade and one D Grade. E Grade has been eliminated as it represents a comparatively small number of hogs including those condemned, stags, ridglings and injured. These will be designated accordingly. Heavy hogs will include those that dress carcasses weighing from 186 to 195 lb. and Extra Heavies will be classed on the basis of carcasses weighing over 196 lbs. The list of grades and weights follows:

Grade A 140 to 170 lb.
Grade B1 135 to 175 lb.
Grade B2 125 to 134 lb.
Grade B3 176 to 185 lb.
C 120 to 185 lb.
D 119 to 185 lb.
Lights 119 and under.
Heavies 186 to 195 lb.
Extra Heavies 196 and over.

A temporary arrangement has been made with the packers to put the payment of Government premiums into effect on Monday, January 24. For the time being, however, the premium paid will be indicated by a stamp on the settlement forms now being used.

New settlement forms are being prepared for the new classifications and it is intended that payment of premiums will be made by Government warrant which will be attached to the new form and which the producer can cash at his bank. It will require some time, however, to complete the arrangements before the new classification and method of payment can be put into effect.

SOIL AND CROP PROBLEMS TO BE DISCUSSED

The Annual Meeting of the Ontario Crop Improvement Association which is being held in the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, February 7th, 8th and 9th will be of far reaching interest and importance. Ontario farmers have been asked to produce more food in 1944 than has ever been produced in the past, and, with this thought in mind, every effort has been put forth to discuss crop and food production problems under present war time conditions.

Speakers at the meeting will include Colonel the Honorable Geo. A. Drew, who recently returned from Britain, who will be guest speaker at the Association banquet Wednesday evening; W. R. Reek, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, who will address a luncheon of potato growers on Monday; Ernest L. Eaton, Upper Canada, Nova Scotia President, Canadian Seed Growers' Association; Roger Gagnon, Chief, Potato Growing Section, Department of Agriculture, Quebec; Dr. H. H. Bennett, Chief, Soil Conservation Service, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington; Prof. E. A. Lods, Macdonald College, Quebec, and a number of outstanding Ontario authorities who will lead discussions on various subjects relating to efficient and maximum crop and food production.

Farmers and others will be in attendance from every section of the Province, including delegates from the forty-nine branches of the Association representing as many countries and districts.

The Ontario Crop Improvement Association has grown from a very small beginning five years ago to an organization of major importance. The attendance at the annual meetings has been increasing yearly and this year's event promises to be most successful.

A Seed Display will again be an added feature to the meetings. Due to the extremely short crop of oats and barley produced in Ontario last year, more farmers and dealers than ever before will be anxious to take advantage of this excellent opportunity to obtain their seed requirements. Those who attend this meeting will find something doing of value and interest from start to finish.

Programmes may be obtained from your agricultural representative or by writing direct to the Secretary-Treasurer, Ontario Crop Improvement Association, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

CEILING PRICES ON GRAIN

Following are the ceiling prices of commercial grain, as given by H. L. Fair, local Agricultural Representative for guidance to county farmers:—

The ceiling price of commercial oats at Fort William to which transportation costs and cost of bag might be added in Ontario, was stated to be $1.04 per bushel for oats. $1.44 per bushel for barley. Ceiling prices of fine seeds in lots of 31 pounds or over were quoted as alfalfa, 37 cents, or $22.20 per bushel; alsike, 29 cents, or $17.40; red clover, 34 cents, or $20.40, and timothy 16 cents or $7.67. Cost of bags could also be added in the case of fine seeds.

FEED DEALERS MUST SUPPLY CUSTOMERS

Some farmers have been complaining that they have not been getting their fair share of the supplies available of fertilizer mixtures with potash content, potash being in somewhat short supply these days.

Grant Peart, fertilizer administrator for the Prices Board, has taken action to clarify this situation by issuing a directive to all fertilizer dealers which requires them to see that their usual customers are properly supplied before new customers are taken on.

Dealers are not permitted to supply customers with mixtures containing potash to a greater extent than 73% of the potash they got in all fertilizers they bought in 1943.

If a fertilizer dealer is a farmer himself, he must not retain for his own farming operations any more than the 73% of what he used in 1943. In other words, he must see that his customers are properly supplied as well as himself, according to what is available.

Dealers may take on new customers only if additional supplies are available after the old customers are looked after.

SEEK $95,000 IN MAINTAINING COUNTY ROADS

At Hastings County Council meeting the roads and bridges committee submitted a report calling for the expenditure on maintenance of county roads and bridges for 1944 of approximately $95,000.

If the report is accepted it would require a tax rate of about 2.5 mills. All councillors passed the report without too much question.

Much discussion was given the establishment of a rehabilitation surplus, with Reeve Churchill of Duncannon suggesting that now was the time to map out a definite program for the post-war era.

If necessary we should increase the tax rate but in any event should put by at least one mill. W. C. West of Stirling was opposed to part of this suggestion saying that all the residents in Hastings County were not "rich" and he could not see how the working class could absorb the suggested increase.

"It is a problem too big for us to handle," he said. Comment given by Reeve William Linn of Marmora was that "60 mills on the dollar on a cash value assessment was sufficient."

TO EXTEND HYDRO 5,000 MORE USERS

Hon. George Chaffin, vice-chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission has announced that hydro services will likely be extended to 5,000 new rural customers in the province.

The announcement was made following a conference with Metals Controller F. M. Connell in which the provincial representatives sought to have the aluminum and copper regulations modified in order to construct 400 miles of primary lines in the eastern farm districts.

"We found Mr. Connell very sympathetic," said the Minister. "The branch is revising its control and there is a more hopeful feeling on metals. We did find him very encouraging."

The greater part of the extension program is being planned for Eastern Ontario and the Ottawa Valley district. It is hoped that it will be undertaken this Spring. The total outlay is estimated at six million dollars. If the extension commences this Spring another plank in the 22-point manifesto of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Party will be realized.

Questions and Answers Concerning The War Time Prices and Trade Board Rulings

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other War-time Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to the Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville, Ontario:—

Q—I often have several meat coupons left over. Will there be enough canned salmon under rationing to use these extra meat coupons for its purchase or will there be a restriction on the number of cans sold to customers?

A—About 200,000 cases of canned salmon are being made available for distribution under rationing. It is hoped that these will be sufficient to meet all reasonable consumer requirements. If not, retailers will naturally desire to effect the most equitable distribution possible among their customers.

Q—I have done business for years with a feed dealer in a nearby town who now insists that I take flour with the feed I buy from him. I don't need this flour. Am I obliged to take it?

A—The regulations of the Prices Board forbid this practice as a conditional sale unless the dealer in question established it during the basic period in 1941.

Q—A woman whom I employ daily by the month has her dinner with us. Ought she not to surrender some of her food coupons to me?

A—Yes, she ought to give you one out of every three of her coupons covering the rationed foods you serve her.

Q—When government departments go to such lengths to conserve paper, why are not the stores issued with only a certain amount of it for wrapping paper, bags, etc., and the obvious waste thus curtailed?

A—If there is not voluntary conservation of paper and if all waste paper is not carefully set aside for salvage collection, it is quite possible that some restriction in this connection may have to be applied. In the meantime, consumers will assist the paper supply situation very materially by not insisting upon the wrapping of articles which do not require it and by doing without such packaging or wrapping wherever possible.

Q—My son is about to enlist for active service. What should I do with his ration book?

A—Please turn it into your Local Ration Board immediately he leaves your household.

Q—Is it true that some ammunition will be available for huntings this year?

A—The manufacture of small arms ammunition is being increased this year. There are, however, many essential requirements having precedence over sports use. Nevertheless, it is quite possible that later in the year a limited amount of ammunition may be released for that purpose.

Q—What should I do with the ration book of a guest at my hotel who died recently?

A—It should be surrendered, with an explanation, to the Ration Administration or to the funeral director who was in charge.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, along with all other communications received during January, also reported 11 cards and one letter sent during the past month. The treasurer, Mrs. O. Stapley, presented a splendid financial report. Mrs. Bradburn, Mrs. P. V. Hellwell, Mrs. A. Scott and Mrs. R. A. Patterson were appointed the visiting committee for the month of February. Nine ladies joined at this meeting. A letter was read on behalf of the committee on the Deaconess Order and Women's Workers, of Toronto, and in response to a plea for financial assistance, it was agreed to forward the contribution of Five dollars, for this good work. During the business portion of the meeting, plans were made for a pot-luck supper.

Committees were also appointed for the purchasing and packing of boxes, to be sent to all the boys of our congregation overseas. The program of the afternoon was directed by the convener of the committee, Mrs. E. G. Bailey. After the singing of hymn 698, the twenty-third Psalm was re-

Canadian Certified Seed Potatoes Should be ordered AT ONCE

PLACE YOUR ORDER NOW, while supplies are still available. Seed potatoes are being withheld from export to meet the requirements of Canadian growers; but the demands from outside Canada are very strong and supplies not needed for planting in Canada should be released for export in March before the season in the U.S.A. is too far advanced for planting.

ORDER "CERTIFIED" for Table Stock Production. Larger crops are needed in 1944. Obtain a heavier yield from each acre by planting Canadian Certified Seed Potatoes.

ORDER "FOUNDATION" and "FOUNDATION A" for Certified Seed Production. All fields entered for certification in 1944 must be planted with either "Foundation" or "Foundation A" seed potatoes.

peated in unison, and a splendid article, "The Nightingale of the Psalms" written by Rt. Rev. R. J. Renison, was given by Mrs. E. G. Bailey. Mrs. Clifford Lansing delivered an outstanding address which was an abbreviated sketch of the life of one whose name was Ann Preston—later on in life was called Holy Ann. This was written by Mrs. Helen Bingham, of Toronto. Ann was a native of Ireland, born of parents who made no pretense of piety. In a very interesting manner, Mrs. Lansing reviewed her entire life and in her closing remarks said "there was something remarkable in the career of a poor woman when at the close ministers of all denominations gathered round her casket and one of the largest city churches was packed to the doors by folk desiring to pay their tribute to Holy Ann."

The meeting closed with the singing of hymn 545; prayer by Mrs. G. H. Leury, and the Mizpah Benediction. Mrs. E. G. Bailey staged a Biblical contest. A very dainty luncheon was served during the social hour. The sincere thanks of the Women's Association to the hostess, Mrs. M. Hick, all who took part on the program, and the entire committee in charge was voiced by Mrs. R. A. Patterson. The following ladies were responsible for the excellent program and lunch—Mrs. E. G. Bailey, Mrs. C.

Lansing, Mrs. G. H. Leury, Mrs. G. W. Jones, Miss Eliza Donnan, Mrs. H. Francis, Mrs. Morley Phillips, Mrs. Harold Chambers, Mrs. Wm. Gunning.

ORDER CERTIFIED SEED POTATOES NOW

Certified seed potatoes are being withheld from export to meet the requirements of Canadian growers, but the Plant Protection Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture points out, demands for these potatoes from other countries are very strong. Supplies not needed for planting in Canada should be released for export in March before the season in the U.S.A. is too far advanced for planting. This means that orders for certified seed potatoes should be placed without delay while supplies are still available.

The planting of certified seed potatoes for table stock will give a heavier yield from each acre planted to such seed. Seed potato growers are reminded that fields entered for certification in 1944 must be planted with either "Foundation" or "Foundation A" seed.

The local District Inspector Seed Potato certification, Plant Protection Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, has a list of growers having "Certified", "Foundation" or "Foundation A" seed potatoes for sale.

ANNUAL CONGREGATION MEETING

Encouraging reports were heard at the annual congregational meeting of the Springbrook United Church, held at the church on Wednesday night, January 26th. The meeting was opened with worship conducted by the minister, Rev. J. R. Holden, who also acted as chairman. In his review of the past year's activities, Rev. Holden reported that seven young people had been received into membership from the Sunday School, while two members had been lost to the congregation through death and three others had transferred their membership to churches in the communities to which they had moved. The minutes commended the congregation for the increased interest which it had taken in the Missionary and Maintenance Funds. Giveings to the wider work of the church, as reported by Mrs. Carmen Sine, Missionary convenor, amounted to $135.89 in 1943, an increase of $59.34 over 1942, or better than 77 per cent. The congregation also contributed $52.30 toward the reduction of the United Church of Canada deficit in 1943, and $5.30 for the relief of Orphaned Missions.

The report of the treasurer, George Thompson, showed that receipts for 1943 amounted to $1358.33, while expenditures totalled $1,016.06, leaving a favorable balance of $342.27. While stating that the financial position of the church was good, the treasurer expressed his belief that there would be a larger balance on hand if a thorough canvass of the congregation had been made during the year. The auditors, George Williams and Carmen Sine, reported that the treasurer's accounts had been examined and found correct. An unanimous vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Thompson for his efficient work, and he was urged to continue in office.

The report of the Sunday School showed an average attendance of 48. The Sunday School was in session for 49 Sundays and receipts totalled $124.23.

Mrs. Kenneth Thompson reported a busy year for the Women's Association, which raised $153.87 during 1943 and kept up a high level of attendance and interest at its regular meetings. The program carried on by the Young People's Union was described by Mrs. Geo. Williams, president.

Four members of the Board of Stewards, whose term concluded last month, were re-elected to the Board for an additional two year period. They included, Kenneth Thompson, Percy Bateman, Wesley Heath and James Mumby. Other officials who were appointed include the following: Auditors, Geo. Williams and Carmen Sine; organist, Mrs. J. A. McKeown; ushers, H. Mumby, L. Bailey, C. Burditt and R. Shortt; caretaker, Emerson Reid; M. & M. Committee, Mrs. C. W. Sine (Treasurer), Mrs. George Bailey, Mrs. George Williams and Lorne Johnston.

Appreciation for the work of the church officials and the various organizations was expressed by the minister. Several of those present expressed the desire that the church basement might be pushed through to completion this year. A special committee composed of E. Reid, M. R. Neal, H. Mumby and Geo. Thompson, was appointed with power to act. The congregation also voted a small grant for the work of the Upper Canada Bible Society.

Mr. George Williams was again re-elected superintendent of the Sunday School at its annual meeting, which followed the congregational meeting. Other officers who were elected were Assistant Superintendent, Kenneth Thompson; secretary, Roy Thompson; assistant, Miss Ila Barton; Treasurer, Glen Sine; Cradle Roll Superintendent, Mrs. Ed. Bateman; Missionary Superintendent, Lorne Johnston; Temperance Superintendent, Mrs. Geo. Williams; Home Dept., convenor, Mrs. Thos. McKeown; organist, Miss Lenora Bateman; assistant, Mrs.

Geo. Williams; grading, Mrs. Rog. McKeown. Upon recommendation of Carmen Sine, the Sunday School decided to take a special offering for the Sick Children's Hospital.

After the business sessions tasty refreshments was served by the Women's Association and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

An exhibition game of hockey between a girls' team, captained by Helen Stinson, and a boys' team, captained by Ray Hermiston, at the local arena on Saturday afternoon resulted in a win for the former by a score of 2-1. Daisy Ellen Kent was the offensive star for the winners, scoring both their goals, while R. Hermiston scored the lone counter for the boys. The return match will be played next Saturday afternoon.

Line-ups:

Girls—Beverley Ingram, M. McIntosh, Eleanor Wells, Doreen Fox, Marilyn Eggleton, Joan Green, Erma Campbell, Daisy Ellen Kent, Shirley Stapley, Helen Stinson.

Boys—Goal, J. McIntosh; defence, M. Montgomery and S. Stapley; centre, Roy Hermiston; wings, Barney Ingram and Bobby Chambers; alternates, Keith Williams, Ronnie Williams, Glen Wilson and Bobby Eggleton.

Life In The C.W.A.C.

BY Sgt. Joyce McKes

Dear Babs:

Only last week I was preparing to settle down in my little niche at Headquarters and plug on but there are now indications that I may not get very deep in my rut after all. I can see the light of a great day dawning. Yes, it is possible that I may find myself climbing aboard a train with a respirator slung over my shoulder and a tin helmet strapped to my back. You know what that means....a hop across the pond! Of course, I don't dare let myself believe it. I will break out in a rash and be quarantined....or develop a leaky heart and lose my category....or perhaps I will prove indispensable. However, our training teaches us that a soldier is never indispensable. He may think he is, but someone always slips into the vacant place and keeps the machinery running.

Excited? Of course, I am, but I am not going to let off any fireworks until it is a sure thing. In the meantime, keep your fingers crossed and wish me luck. I may be saying "hello" to your Dave in Piccadilly yet. The bare possibility makes me want to turn cartwheels, hardly the thing for a responsible C.W.A.C.!

I have not yet given Barty a hint of what may be in store for me and truth to tell, I am afraid to let her know. She is such a militant young woman. I don't doubt that she could give me fifteen good reasons why she should go, rather than myself. First she would shell me with big words and then when my head was spinning close in. I can see myself meekly trailing along to the O.C. and requesting that Barty be permitted to take my place—if, as and when. Of course, I am joking. In the first place, she would not do me out of the chance and secondly our officers are not often swayed by whims of the girls.

Incidentally, if Barty were not in the throes of another fad, she would be sure to notice my abstraction but she has just discovered Shakespeare and the buskin stage. The day is past when she would merely walk in to a room, she now makes an entrance in the Sara Bernhardt manner, breathing some immortal quotation. Yesterday it was "All the World's a stage and all the men and women merely players...." My patience snapped and I rudely interrupted. "And all the C.W.A.C. are nuts!" It was not well received. She severely rebuked me for my "unbecoming levity" and hinted that she would enjoy seeing me stew in my own juice. Of course, that is not the way she put it. She said, "Be careful Nicky, you will live to rue squandering your intellectual heritage on trivialities." Oh, she was in rare form, but we parted the best of friends. However, remind me to beat her with a big stick before I sail for Blighty. Someone has to bring her back to earth.

Speaking of that, I must try keeping my own feet on the ground. I believe sincerely that while life in Canada is less spectacular, it is here that the Canadian Women's Army Corps can do its most valuable work. Here the need to replace men is greater and the girls who are slipping into army vacancies in Canada are the girls who deserve the greatest credit. So you see that I am not 'kidding' myself that I am entitled to any bouquets for trying for the overseas draft. However, I have served my turn here and many girls who are junior to myself in service are in England, so I feel justified in taking the opportunity, if it materializes.

So long, Red, and let's try to have a week-end together soon. I am pining to see a good hockey game and Montreal is due for some good matches soon, so why not come home with me? A C.W.A.C. friend of mine, Sgt. Marion Greenley of Cobourg, Ont. will be coming, too. Marion does not know Montreal and is anxious to explore and where would she find better guides? We will have to watch ourselves though or before it is over, she will be guiding us around. Marion is the C.W.A.C. Pay Sergeant and bright as a silver dollar, so we will have to be on our toes.

With Love,
NICKY

VITAMINS ARE FACTS

Hello Homemakers! Within recent years the word "vitamin" has assumed a new and vital significance in the lives of people who had previously given it little, if any, thought. Today, the great majority of active and intelligent homemakers do realize that it is associated with both "a sound mind" and "a sound body."

While vitamins cannot be seen, tasted or measured by weight, they can be measured chemically. They are primarily food substances which, in small quantities, are essential to a regular and healthy way of life—a way of life we are now seeking to maintain.

Scientific research has unfolded a very enlightening story in the matter of vitamins. To-day, we know that people who take the foods which do not supply adequate amounts, even of one vitamin, may find that they are not up to par when on the job, and that there is a lowering of resistance to disease. In the case of children vitamin deficiency will also cause their growth to be retarded.

Official food rules have been carefully planned in such a way as to assure a balanced diet. By observing these simple rules every day, people can enjoy a variety of food which will provide all the vitamins that build and maintain strong, healthy bodies. Ignoring these basic foods demands ignoring the laws of nature.

To renew acquaintances with the various members of the vitamin family we point out the prominence given by the air force in their diet to prevent blindness or "dimout." This vitamin A is found in leafy, green and yellow vegetables (carrots) liver, fish liver oils and butter.

Vitamin B-1, which assists in preventing such distresses as pink eye and indigestion and, at the same time, gives the appetite a lift is known as the "morale" vitamin. It is found in whole-grain cereals such as wheat germ, cracked wheat, rye, buckwheat, oatmeal and the flour which has been enriched by these grains. Dried peas and beans and lean meat are not so rich in vitamin B-1.

It is highly important to recognize the value of wheat germ which can be served in the morning cup of coffee, on top of cereals or in quick bread mixtures.

In the next Mixing Bowl article, vitamins C and D will be discussed.

RECIPES

Chocolate Cereal Pudding

2 cups cooked cereal, 1-4 cup wheat germ, 3 tbsp. sugar, 2

tbsp. corn syrup, 1-2 cup milk 1-4 cup cherries (candied), 3

tbsp. cocoa.
[Mix ingredients and cook in a greased baking pan set in a pan with a little hot water in it. Bake until mixture is set, in electric oven at 350 degrees.]

Rice Muffins

3-4 cup cooked rice, 3-4 cup flour, 1-2 tsp. salt, 3 tsp. baking powder, 1 tbsp. sugar, 1 egg, 1 tbsp. fat, 3-4 cup milk.

Mix and sift the dry ingredients; beat eggs and add cooked rice which has been well drained and mashed. Add melted shortening and milk. Fold in dry ingredients.

The batter is stiffer than ordinary muffins and may be dropped from a spoon on a greased sheet. Bake in electric oven 25-30 minutes. Cereal may be used.

Economical Johnny Cake

1-2 cups flour, 1-2 cups cornmeal, 4 tsp. baking powder, 3-4 cup milk, 1-2 tsp. sugar, 2 tbsp. fat, melted, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 3-4 cup water.

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Combine milk, water and fat. Combine the liquid with the dry ingredients. Pour into a shallow pan and bake in electric oven 20 minutes.

Applesauce Cake

1 cup sugar, 1-3 cup fat, 1 cup applesauce, 2 cups flour, 1-2 cup raisins, 1 cup soda, 1-2 tsp. cinnamon, 1-2 tsp. cloves, 1-4 tsp. salt, 1-4 tsp. nutmeg.

Sift together soda, spices, salt and flour. Cream the fat, add sugar, applesauce, dry ingredients and raisins. Bake in moderate electric oven. This may be cooked in muffin tins or cup cake tins.

Take a Tip

1. Make flour paste to use in fastening down a piece of oil-cloth instead of tacking it on. When this is done it cannot wrinkle or crack when being washed. Waxing the cloth will add to its wear too....but do not spread bread on it to butter or you may have wax-flavoured sandwiches.

2. Open your home canned products carefully, not to damage the jar tops or rubber rings. Wash the jars and rubbers thoroughly in soapy water and rinse twice in hot water. When thoroughly dry, put the rubber rings in the jars and put on the tops, then place on the cool storage shelf again.

SUGGESTION BOX

Mrs. C. A. says: Make a bottle brush using a stiff wire about 10 in. long; bend it about half an inch from the end. Cut pieces of soft string 6 inches long and tie in bunches of 6 strands to the wire, about half an inch apart. You will find it convenient to clean vases, electric toasters and other things.

Mrs. J. D. says: Sew old rubber rings, which cannot be used again, on the under side of floor mats to keep them from slipping.

"RACING DRIVER"

By ALEXANDER CAMPBELL

FIFTH INSTALMENT

"Skulls Make Me Scream". Dorothy Ellington seated in a deck chair facing the rail, became aware of Frank Carter at her elbow.

"Good morning!" he said cheerfully. "Good Morning," said Dorothy. She smiled. It was a perfect morning. There had been a couple of days of rough weather, and the ship's dance had had to be postponed. But now the sun shone from a cloudless sky, and the ship forged her way smoothly through a calm sea. Old hands promised a fair passage all the way to the Cape.

"How about a stroll around the deck?" he suggested.

"Thank you, Mr. Carter."

"Come, come!" he reproved. "Let us drop this old world custom. Call me Frank. With your permission, I'll call you Dorothy."

"Certainly, Frank," she assured him.

They strolled for a while on the upper deck. Presently she said: "I must go and look for Father. I haven't seen him since lunch. I want him to have a good time on this trip, and if I don't rout him out he'll start on his new book and we shan't see him until he docks at Capetown."

Frank laughed. "I wouldn't worry. The last time I saw him, he was playing shuffle board and winning hands down."

"With whom?"

"My aunt," he said. "Ah, here they are!"

They had descended while they talked to the lower deck. A couple were energetically playing shuffle board, whooping excitedly when a counter steered for the jack. Dorothy recognized her father and, a trim figure in a jersey and dark skirt, Frank's aunt.

"Father seems to be enjoying himself," she commented.

"So does Christine," by jove!" said Frank. He frowned. "Why, I wouldn't be surprised—"

"What?"

"Nothing," he said. "I—I was just thinking."

He was remembering his aunt's pretty face when he had first mentioned Professor Ellington to her and she had recalled their first meeting.

Dorothy had not yet had a proper opportunity of talking to Frank's aunt. She seized it when it came that evening after dinner.

Professor Ellington had started a very heated controversy on whether the world was making progress or sinking back into barbarism, and he was pointing out that the Stone Age was comparatively recent in contrast with these earlier eras of human life to which his investigations were leading him.

"Very interesting!" commented Christine briskly.

"However, now that the strong silent men of the twentieth century have got their teeth into the Stone Age, I think it's time that we women left them to it. . . Miss Ellington, let's go before they pick up their clubs!"

On deck, Christine leaned her pretty elbows on the rail and gazed over the sea. It was a lovely night. Stars had rushed to fill the sky and the air was soft and warm. There was no sound save the faint creaking of wood and ropes.

"Three days," mused Christine. "Time does fly on board ship, doesn't it? Are you enjoying the trip?"

"Very much," said Dorothy. "And so is father. I wanted him to have this holiday very much."

"So he told me," said Christine. She was silent for a moment. "He's a very clever man in some ways, Miss Ellington."

"And in others?" Christine laughed. "That's just it. In others—well, he's like most men. A perfect baby!"

"Tell me, don't you get a bit bored, having skulls for breakfast, neanderthal man for lunch, and your father's great enemy Jackson for dinner?"

For the first time in two years, Dorothy was amazed to find herself speaking the absolutely candid truth.

"There are times," she said, "when the word 'skull' makes me want to scream! But you mustn't misjudge father. He has very wide interests, really."

"And your fiancé?" asked Christine casually.

"Rupert," said Dorothy, firmly, "is, of course, very interested in his work."

"Is it very dangerous?"

"Not to the exclusion of all else, I hope," said Christine.

"No more," Dorothy assured her, "than your nephew is in motor racing."

"Well, that's saying a great deal," admitted Christine.

"Is it very dangerous?" asked Dorothy, after a pause. "Racing, I mean?"

"Not so bad as it's sometimes painted," said Christine. "But bad enough."

Dorothy felt a queer thrill of disquiet. Yet of all the men she had ever met, Frank Carter seemed the one best able to take care of himself.

She stole a look at Christine. I rather like her thought, Dorothy. She's such a straightforward little person. So, of course, was he.

She thought of Frank Carter, with his frank smile and strong, capable hands.

"The dance!" exclaimed Christine. "We'll be wallflowers if we don't hurry; and in that direction I have no ambition at all."

The ballroom was one of the ship's finest features. The floor was a delight, and cool air entered through the many open windows.

Professor Ellington rose to greet them.

"I thought you'd got lost, Christine, you promised me first dance."

"Did I?" said Christine thoughtfully. It must have been the champagne we had for dinner. Never mind. I always keep my word."

They drifted away from the table, and Dorothy rubbed her eyes. Professor Ellington was dancing with a grace she had not given him credit for. Christine was gazing up at him and talking animatedly.

"May I?"

It was the South African, John Forester. Dorothy rose. He danced exceptionally well, and she complimented him. He smiled.

"We're not all savages in South Africa, you know! Wait until you get to Jo'burg—if you do happen to pass that way. We can show London a few things!"

"Only we are rather modest, you see. We prefer to hide our light under a bushel. But the stories they tell about us!"

"On this last trip home I was asked if we had to keep fires burning outside our houses to scare the lions away. And one person I met who proposed he wouldn't need more than a couple of sun helmets and a mosquito net and plenty of quinine; but what really worried him was, should he bring his own bedding or would he be laughed at for not wanting to rough it!"

"My fiancé is out there," Dorothy told him. "He is doing some research work for father in the Drakensburg Mountains."

"Natal," nodded Forester. "The Mountains of the Dragon! That's what it means, you know. A lovely spot."

They returned to the table; and Christine and the professor joined them there presently. Professor Ellington was beaming.

"Well, how did I do?" he asked his partner.

"I have known many worse," said Christine judiciously. "You will undoubtedly improve with practice."

She looked around. "Ah! Here's Frank."

Frank was indeed approaching; and on his arm was a vision of loveliness—the vivacious Florence Shaw.

Frank introduced her.

Dorothy found herself smiling to the girl. Florence smiled back. "Pleased to meet you, Miss Ellington."

Frank appraised them swiftly. They stood together, the dark haired, grey-eyed girl, and the blonde, blue-eyed one. It was difficult to say which was the lovelier.

The band struck up again. And a young man hurried across the floor space and extended the hand to Florence.

"Florence! You promised this one to me!"

There was reproach in his tones.

"Of course, Bertie!" said Florence brightly. But she managed to convey other sentiments in the swift look she cast Frank.

Dorothy found herself dancing with Frank.

"Conspirators," she said. "But what's the secret?"

"I Love You!"

"Bertie," said Frank, and nodded at the back of the young man dancing with Florence. "He has got it badly. Unfortunately his affection is not reciprocated as he would like it to be."

"I suppose that must be rather sad."

"Well, suppose you arrived at Capetown to find Rupert chasing after another female?"

"Please, don't let's get personal."

"Right-o. Don't you find it hot in here?"

"Not a bit."

"I thought you would," said Frank blithely. "I do, too. I think a stroll on deck is indicated."

He had stopped dancing and was leading her up the staircase to the deck.

"Where shall we go? Right on top?" Dorothy sighed. "Why not? If I say 'No,' you'll say 'Right-o'—and we shall find ourselves on the upper deck. So lead on, MacDuff."

Frank led on.

For a while they strolled arm in arm on the upper deck. The air was still soft, the stars more brilliant than ever. The boat swayed ever so gently, to the accompaniment of faint creakings. Far above their heads the mast lights gleamed.

Dorothy found her thoughts running on the conversation she had had with Christine.

"Are you looking forward very much to this race, Frank?"

"Very much, Dorothy," he assured her. "Our friends the Italians, much as I admire them, have been getting away with far too much of late in the racing world. I hope to steer a British car to victory in the Grand Prix."

"Tell me about it."

"The Grand Prix? It's one of the biggest racing events in the world. There are really two races, but the main event is at East London, the port between Port Elizabeth and Durban. They have a jolly fine circuit there—the Prince Edward—and you ought to see the crowds! Distance doesn't mean very much to these South Africans, and they come from all over the country for the race. In fact, it's a pleasure to race for them. The British crowds, I'm afraid, tend to be sated with thrills, but the South Africans are race-mad—"

"Exactly!" she said, a trifle bitterly, her thoughts still running on what Christine had said about the risks of this game. "Race-mad—and you cater for them. Don't you think it's just a little silly?"

"Any thing is silly if you look at it that way," said Frank stoutly. "Any game, that is. What about golf, where you push a little white ball round a regulation 18-hole course?"

"But the risks!"

"Exaggerated!" said Frank confidently. "Most racing drivers have cool heads—or they wouldn't be racing drivers. And if you've got a cool head you've nothing to fear."

"What about a well, a blown tire, for example?"

"What about a skidding bus when you happen to be crossing a London street?" retorted Frank. "That's just fate. You can't do anything about it, and so there's no use in thinking about it."

"Does your aunt always watch your races?" asked Dorothy.

"Christine? Oh, practically always. She's thrilled to the teeth by the business, you know."

"Do you like her?" he asked.

"I do."

"I'm so glad. But then most people do like Christine. She's such a jolly good sport," Frank chuckled. "She and the professor seem to get on very well."

"Yes," said Dorothy.

They were standing in the shadow of a life-boat. The upper deck was utterly deserted. Perhaps it was the magic of the night, or the champagne which he too had drunk for dinner. Frank took a deep breath. He had never seen his companion look lovelier. He felt that he simply could not keep silent any longer.

Unconsciously she had moved closer to him while they were talking, and her nearness was overpowering. Frank seized her hands.

"Dorothy," he said. "I love you!"

"Mutual Esteem and the Moon." Her reaction was not what he had expected. Coolly she withdrew her hands. Coolly she regarded him. Then she sighed.

"Thanks for the compliment. I was wondering when it would come."

He was taken aback?

"What do you mean?"

"It's the right thing to do, isn't it? Young man, pretty girl—you see I have no illusions about myself—a ship's deck and the stars. But you don't mean it, you know."

"Why not?"

"Because you've known me only a few days. It doesn't happen as quickly as that."

"That's what I used to think."

"Then you were right then, wrong now. 'Love,' said Dorothy coolly, 'is not an affair of sudden irresistible attraction. Anyone who believes that it is is heading for disaster. It is an affair of mutual esteem and respect. And mutual esteem and respect can be built up only after long acquaintance and after a careful analysis of the other person's ways of thinking and outstanding characteristics.'"

They were still standing in the shadow of the life boat; but Frank had let go of his companion's hands.

"Nevertheless," he said determinedly, "I can assure you that I have fallen in love with you—deeply, sincerely. I don't ask you to return this affection at once—"

Plans and Politics

A striking early observation of the new sessional drama in Ottawa is that in face of the grave problems of war and post-war confront the members of Canada's Parliament, yet it is capable of being perceived backstage along Parliament Hill that the atmosphere seems to be electrified with politics as a result of the recess during which these members had sounded out their constituents on various controversial problems which should be solved. The air is now charged so heavily that any instantaneous and quick political storm or happening would prove no surprise or shock to this veteran observer of such developments over a period of many years, accentuated by momentous events which appear to be in the making both in Canada and overseas. Therefore, political gossip and speculation stand out in the undercurrent whippers of the doings behind the scenes in the nation's capital, especially since it is predicted that in the provincial field three elections would be forthcoming before the end of the present year and that in the federal field the legal tenure of the present Parliament would have ended by May, 1945, this being even more significant when it is remembered that in the past a majority of the Liberal Governments in Ottawa have had a tendency to test their strength with the people of the country every four years and they have not waited until the full length of the legal tenure had expired.

Increasing Offensive Power

With the growing strength of the armed forces of the United Nations suggested in the latest offensive-minded preparations, the report that United States militia has been undergoing changes in a certain way to increase the offensive power overseas has caused no surprise whatsoever in Ottawa because several months ago a somewhat similar policy of reorganization of Canadian forces had occurred in this country, affecting the 6th, 7th and 8th Canadian Divisions.

Optimistic Foresight

A sign of the optimistic foresight prevailing now about the good fortunes of war which the coming year may bring for the United Nations can be seen in the reports circulating about consideration that should be given to the problem of feeding Europe if and when territories of the old continent have been freed from enemy occupation, with many observers looking towards Canada as one of the most important sources of help in supplying these tremendous demands as soon as these will be made, particularly in regard to wheat. So far the indications have been that, even after domestic needs have been satisfied, wheat will be available in 1944 to serve such possible demands abroad by virtue of the huge carryovers as well as the new crop of that year both in Canada and the other wheat-producing countries, including the United States, Australia, Argentina, United Kingdom, Elre, and so forth. The crop has been less in some places of these nations, such as in Australia, but in others, such as in Argentina, United Kingdom and Elre, there has been a huge increase so that, all in all, wheat productions and carryovers have been rather good enough to warrant a solid backing for a somewhat optimistic foresight regarding the ability of these countries to feed these conquered territories of Europe for a time at least as soon as these will be freed from enemy occupation.

Hint of Future Policy

A prominent official of National Selective Service has predicted that more war workers may be laid off or moved in the near future as took place in the case of Nobel, Ontario, where several thousand war workers were laid off, though provisions were made rather quickly to put these persons in other employment as soon as possible, with this method of solving such problems of unemployment being interpreted as a strong hint of likely future actions or decisions in obtaining new jobs for workers whenever or wherever possible or necessary.

Imagination and Reality

As a partial result of the widespread discussions on the subject, it has been known that the people of Canada have been looking towards a removal or at least a considerable easing up soon of some of the wartime restrictions or rationing. However, anyone who has expected a large scale or widespread action in this direction may not be satisfied entirely, judging by the stories heard along

Lengthy Session of Village Council Held Monday To Decide Problems

United Church Sheds Rent on Yearly Basis — Renew P. Liability Insurance

A lengthy session of the village council took place on Monday night, with Reeve Wm. C. West presiding and all the members present.

Communications were tabled from the following: Dept. of Agriculture re appointment of weed inspector; Ontario Association Rural Municipalities, re membership; Ontario Good Roads Association re convention; list of lands to be offered for sale by the county for taxes during 1944; medical Welfare Board, re account for medical services; A. Wilson & Co. re claim against municipality for damages to motor car—owned by A. Weaver; Bank of Montreal, re over rate of interest on loans to municipality; Municipal World, re revision of cemetery by-laws.

Councillor Elliott advocated membership to Ontario Association Rural municipalities. Much of the provincial legislation had its source with this organization and he felt Stirling should be represented at its annual convention.

Thompson-Bailey—That communications be received and filed.

Ex-councillor Jas. V. Holt, addressed council urging that representation be made to the Ontario Department of Highways to have the road surface on No. 33 Highway, west of Emily St., lowered to overcome flooding the sidewalks and cellars of homes on the occasion of a thaw in the winter months or at the Spring break-up. He felt now was the opportune time to approach the Minister of Highways. Councillor Elliott, who is a property owner in this section, concurred in Mr. Holt's remarks and the matter will be taken up with the Department.

A request for a taxi license was tabled from Wm. Montgomery. Council were favorable to the application.

Jack Kane and W. L. Fox were a deputation from St. Paul's United Church re the disposal of the Church sheds. It was pointed out that these sheds were used by the general public throughout the week and were an asset to the business men and the village as a whole. The church Board had decided to sell them unless some agreement could be reached with the village. A lengthy discussion followed and on motion of councillors Wells and Bailey, it was agreed to rent the sheds for $65 per annum and pay for the upkeep of one light in the shed, the church to pay all taxes.

Thos. Donnan, tax collector, expressed his disappointment at the tax collections this year. Total unpaid taxes up-to-date are $1520.83 stated the collector, who read a list of the delinquents. Those remaining unpaid by next month will be returned to the County for collection.

Harper Rollins, treasurer, thanked council for confidence placed in him in appointing him as treasurer. He paid tribute to his predecessor in office and stated he would do his utmost in performing the duties of his office.

H. C. Martin addressed council relative to street liability insurance, for a number of years this premium has been $100, but during the past two years claims have been heavier than usual. In the past year the amount of claims paid was $311. In view of the heavy damage claim, the company has increased the premium $50 per year. On motion of Councillors Wells and Elliott, the insurance was renewed with the Lloyd's Co. at a premium of $150.

The matter of the fire insurance of the community building was also discussed. It was moved by councillors Bailey and Wells that the insurance on the community building and contents for $3000 be renewed for 3 years at a premium of $75.00.

Needed repairs to the chimney on the fire hall and a new rope on the fire alarm were brought to the attention of the council by councillor Wells. The property committee will look after the matter.

A money bylaw for borrowing up to $15,000 for current expenses during

R.C.A.F. BEATS NAVY

A good crowd of fans were on hand for the game and were treated to plenty of action, particularly in the final period when the losers gave their best display. The RCAF plans bringing another game here in the near future and when they do the local arena will be taxed to capacity to accommodate the crowd.

Red Cross Discuss Need For Blood Donors

At the regular business meeting of Stirling Branch, held in the community hall last Friday, there was a lengthy discussion re securing blood donors in this community. The need is great now, but with invasion impending there is going to be a very definitely greater need for more and still more blood donors to get into service. There was nothing decided upon, but it was left for the capable consideration of a few from whom we can expect some definite action in the near future.

Christmas box acknowledgements not previously listed were from Capt. A. M. Laverty, Bill Morton and Carmen Osborne.

The treasurer reported January receipts as $46.66, and expenditures $125.68. Teas, $11.52.

Mrs. Belshaw announced the new knitting quota to be 20 turtle neck sweaters and 30 V-neck sweaters for the Air Force and 40 prs. gloves.

A new kind of an appeal has come to the Red Cross, but it is nonetheless an imperative one. Women are being asked to look through their scraps of wool—any color, any ply, and knit every little bit into mitts, socks, booties, and caps for infants, and sweaters, mitts, socks and caps for both boys and girls. These warm articles are to be shipped to Greece, from whom the Canadian Red Cross society has had a most urgent appeal, to help clothe the poverty stricken children of that war-torn little country.

Colors won't matter, as long as the materials are wool. Several colors may be used in one article. Attractiveness is an asset—but warmth is the prime necessity. These articles are needed immediately. Those who can to some of this work but have no wool whatever, please see Mrs. Belshaw.

'Combines' Defeat Belleville Jrs. To Finish In Second Place

In the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Murney Johnston and Duane, of Sine and Mrs. Ana English, of Belleville, assembled and served a bountiful supper including a 25th Anniversary cake.

High School Dance Highly Successful

The annual "At Home" dance of the Stirling High School on Friday evening last proved one of the finest social events of the season. The gymnasium had been artistically decorated under the direction of Miss Marcella Stapley, and presented an atmosphere of friendship and enjoyment.

Music for the occasion was furnished by the "Aces" Orchestra, of Deseronto, with dancing being enjoyed by the large crowd from nine-thirty until two a.m.

Dainty refreshments, prepared under the direction of Miss R. Whale, teacher of Home Economics, were served by the pupils. The guests were greeted by Principal and Mrs. J. L. Good, Dr. E. A. Carleton, chairman of the Board of Education, and Mrs. Carleton and Miss Marion Rose and Albert Bastedo, representing the student body.

In all the members of staff and pupils sponsored a most enjoyable evening and those in attendance are as one in saying "do it again."

Prominent In Glee Club

Douglas M. Gray, of Stirling, played a prominent part in the Queen's University Glee Club presentation of the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, "The Gondoliers," this week. A third-year student in Arts, Mr. Gray had the role of Luiz, attendant to the Duke of Plaza-Toro. Capacity audiences attended the three performances.

First Game of Semi-Finals With Tweed To Be Played In Arena Tomorrow Night

Old Man "Dope" was handed a rude shock last night, when the Stirling-Marmora "Combines" defeated the highly-touted Belleville Juniors on their home ice by a score of 6-4 to capture second place and the right to meet Tweed in the semi-finals. Beaten at home Monday night, the locals were given little chance by the fans to topple Belleville but they failed to reckon with the fighting qualities of the "Combines" who gave one of their best all-round displays of the season.

The line of Patterson and the Bastedo brothers again spearheaded the Combines attack, accounting for five goals, while Tremble notched the other. Patterson and Doug. Bastedo got two each and Bert one. Lavender, Utman, and McIntosh, along with Whitehead, were strong defensively, while McIntosh starred in the nets. Belleville got two goals on intercepted passes in the locals defence area and the others with Utman, local defenseman, serving a penalty.

Play Tweed Tomorrow Night

The first game of the semi-finals between the "Combines" and Tweed, who were given a bye into the playoffs, will be in the Stirling Arena Friday night, Feb. 11th. The return game will be in Tweed on Wednesday next, and the venue of the third game, if necessary, will be decided by goals in the first two games. Little is known of the ability of the Tweed pucksters but fans are assured of plenty of action at the Henry St. Ice Palace tomorrow night.

MONDAY IS CARNIVAL NIGHT

Plan now to attend the Big Ice Carnival which is being held under the auspices of the Stirling Agricultural Society at the Stirling Arena, on Monday evening next, February 14th. The members of the Society are working hard to ensure the success of this annual event and nothing is being left undone to provide a splendid program. There will be a hockey game between two teams as well as the customary competitions for fancy, and comic costumes, and a number of races for both boys and girls and adults. A good array of prizes has been secured through the co-operation of the business men and other interested persons in the village, and will be allotted for the various competitions. At the conclusion of the program general skating will be permitted for all. Door prizes will also be given away.

Altogether this should be an entertaining program and one worthy of the support of every one. The proceeds will go toward reducing the outstanding indebtedness of the Society, whose directors have worked hard for years to keep the organization alive. We urge our readers to get behind them and by their attendance show their appreciation of their efforts. Decide now to attend either in costume or as a spectator, and urge your friends to do the same. Your support is needed and will be greatly appreciated. Remember the date, Monday, February 14th, and the place—Stirling Arena.

CIGARETTES FOR THE BOYS

The greatest morale builder for the boys overseas is a parcel from home, containing little delicacies that those in the armed forces are deprived of. Of these probably the most appreciated by a great majority of the boys are Canadian cigarettes.

Having this in mind the local branch of the Women's Institute are sponsoring a card party, the entire proceeds of which will go to buy cigarettes for the boys overseas. The members of this organization are forever doing some worthy work in the community and their present appeal should not go unheeded. We urge our readers to attend the card party next Thursday night, February 17th, and do your bit towards supplying our boys overseas with a supply of smokes.

WHY NOT HERE?

With the Canadian Red Cross urgently appealing for blood donors to provide blood plasma, doesn't it seem strange that no effort has been made to enlist donors in Stirling and surrounding district? Belleville has its blood clinic and a mobile clinic has been visiting various municipalities in the surrounding district but so far as we are aware no effort has been made to procure donors here. Several of our citizens have visited the clinic in Belleville but no doubt there are many others who would gladly make a donation if facilities were provided for their transportation to the clinic or if a mobile clinic were to visit here.

OPTIMISM PREVAILS

The various Agricultural Societies in this district have held their annual meetings and all have expressed their determination to sponsor a Fall Fair in 1944. A spirit of optimism prevails in almost every case and already many of the societies are planning ways and means of making the 1944 Fair an improvement over former years. In the case of Stirling, good progress has been made in recent years and the capital debt has been reduced to a matter of a few hundred dollars. Plans are already under way to reduce this still further, and all that remains is to get the whole-hearted support of the general public in their endeavours.

THE WARTIME CONTROLS—PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE

Among the beliefs rather widely held at this stage of the war seems to be one to the effect that many restrictions affecting civilians remain in force because officialdom is unwilling to let go something it has started and that it firmly intends to control to the bitter end. These administrators are frequently represented as being so attached to their jobs and so enamoured of their works that nothing will induce them to surrender either. Hence, people say, the continuance of controls which are no longer required and which might safely be eliminated. The history of our wartime controls will, we think, effectively disprove this contention. Not every one of our restrictions is now where it started. There has been lessening of many of them as the over-all situation warranted such action being taken. In the field of rationing, for instance, the consumer is now able to buy more tea or coffee than he did at the outset. If he is ready to surrender his preserves coupons for more sugar, he can obtain it. He can now apply for extra rations to cover the feeding of service men in his household on leave. Quite recently, there has been a notable increase in the value of the preserves coupon. We are promised some lessening of the restrictions on small-arms ammunition this year. In other fields, similar changes have taken place. It has been found possible to release for civilian production limited stocks of certain metals which were once in critical supply. Some of the restrictions on the production of men's and women's clothing have been abolished. Scarcely a day passes, indeed, without relaxation of some control which, once highly necessary, can now be safely modified.

Hard-hearted bureaucrats determined to impose and retain maximum restrictions affecting long-suffering consumers would scarcely behave in this manner. The truth is, of course, that these administrators are just as anxious as anyone else to see the last of the regulations they have established, and wherever relaxation is possible without prejudicing Canada's vital stake in a war which grows in intensity or without reducing stock-piles beyond the degree of safety, they are pursuing such a course. Undoubtedly they will continue to do so wherever and whenever the circumstances warrant it, but this does not rule out the possibility of new restrictions being imposed to take care of other circumstances which may arise.

In adopting such a policy, cautious though it may be, those who administer our wartime controls are unquestionably acting in the best interests of both the Dominion and its consumers. Too precipitate action might easily lead to the necessity of re-introducing with even greater severity some control which had been abandoned. The loss of one or two cargoes at sea, for example, may alter the entire supply situation affecting some commodity just as the arrival of some war demand for which provision had not been made may easily upset all calculations. The administrators have to be ready for any eventuality. It is thus necessary for them to move cautiously and with due regard to all future possibilities.

This is, therefore, a time for the exercise of all possible patience on the part of the consumer. We have surmounted many of our wartime supply difficulties but they are by no means at an end. Until they have been finally conquered, we must be prepared to put up with any inconveniences or annoyances associated with them, knowing that they remain in force for the very best of reasons founded upon expert knowledge of the general situation and knowing also that too hasty removal of restrictions may easily involve us in even greater difficulties than those we have overcome.

PERSONNEL MANAGER'S NIGHTMARE

What's to be done about Harry? Four years ago, when he enlisted, he was a boy of eighteen earning a relatively small wage as a junior clerk in a large company. He was a bright lad, marked for advancement as he learned the business, and his quality is shown by the fact that he has won a commission in the Canadian army.

Legally, Harry is entitled to his old job; but when parliament blithely passed the act that guarantees him the job, nobody seemed to think that Harry would no longer be a boy of eighteen when the war ended. He will be a young man, possibly a captain or a major, and in the course of his military career he has acquired a wife and a child. His value to his employer is precisely the same as when his business career was interrupted—perhaps less, for there have been some changes in methods and policies during Harry's absence. The old job, at the old rate of pay, is obviously not suitable to his age and marital status, but the better jobs are either filled or are liable to claims from other employees also in the army.

Then there is Jim, who took Harry's job until he too came of military age, and who is on a corvette in the North Atlantic. He was succeeded by Tom, who is regularly flying over Berlin in a bomber. Arthur, Tom's successor, was turned down on his medical examination, but National Selective Service decided that he would be useful in a war industry, so compulsory transfer took effect.

A recurring nightmare of the personnel manager is the vision of Harry, Jim, Tom and Arthur applying simultaneously for the same job. Hitherto, he has wakened in a cold sweat, having received no revelation to solve his problem.

Don't throw the snow shovel away or oil up the lawn mower yet awhile. Wednesday of last week was Candlemas Day and Old Sol shone forth in all his glory. The bear and groundhog saw their shadows and, according to the weather legend, turned tail and crawled back into their winter homes for another six weeks.

Next Monday, February 14th, is Saint Valentine's Day, the day when the laddies and the lassies send their missives of love to one another. This day is also noted for other historical events. It was upon this day, in 1876 that Graham Bell patented his telephone, and on the same day in the year 1400, Richard II, King of England, was murdered. No one seems to know what St. Valentine had to do with this day, and since, according to authority, there were fifty-two Saints by the name of Valentine, no one seems certain which Saint Valentine is honoured upon this day.

CURE FOR MOTHS?

What wouldn't the men in the trenches in 1914-18 have given for that new and powerful insecticide, one application of which protects clothing from vermin for a whole month? UNCLE HY.

The radio keeps aharping much, on what a man should do, to keep a cold from coming on, and how to fight the flu, but I dunno I do not fall for everything I hear, and I've been round I'll have you know, for nigh on fifty years.

When I was but a lad at home, and drug stores were not known, and there was not a doc, in sight, and not a telephone, and I was threatened with a cold, when colds were at their best, I'd take a mother's sage advice, rub goose grease on my chest.

We hadn't much in medicines, in those pioneering days, coal oil for a bad sore throat, sulphur in many ways, tobacco smoke 'in an aching ear, hot salt on an aching tooth, bread and milk a poultice was, and a good one in all truth.

But we got by, we live our span, 'twas tough there was no doubt, but molly-coddling was a thing, we'd never heard about, our aches and pains were all our own, we suffered much and so, we made our cures and we made 'em well, we'd have you moderns know.—Trenton Courier-Advocate.

MAIRZY DOATS AND DOZY DOATS

As a humble member of the great and gullible public we can swallow a great deal of the hooey foisted on us by press agents, public relations brigades and others promotion banditti. We utterly refuse, however, to have anything to do with the story which has been circulating to account for the genesis of a juke-box ditty called Mairzy Doats. The tale is this: Milton Drake, a composer of songs of this type, was setting one day at the organ; he was weary and ill at ease; and his fingers wandered idly over the noisy keys. Then he heard his little daughter, Niella Bonni Drake, falsehood that the tot was singing, rushing about the house singing—

Mairzy doats and dozy doats,
And liddle lamzy divy;
A kiddley divy, too—

"Mares eat oats, and does eat oats, and little lambs eat ivy; a kid will eat ivy too—" but that faulty enunciation made the words sound like the mess which we have transcribed above. We greet this tale with a scream of derision and contemptuous gestures.

Why? Because that wheeze is at least a century old. We had it tried on us by aunts, who, in turn, had it tried on them, by aunts who, in the dark backward and abysm of time, had suffered it from even more remote aunts. Their version was—

Hareseatay, mareseatay

which the acute reader will at once recognize as "Hares eat hay, mares eat hay, sheep eat ivy", but the basic idea is the same.

Milton Drake is selling 25,000 copies a day of his piece; 45,000 juke boxes play it; Lily Pons, Irene Dunn and Herbert Marshall have sung it on the radio. He stole it from our family, in which it has been handed down from aunt to aunt since the days of Merrie England. Not that we like it, even in its original form—Peterboro Examiner.

PLEASE LADIES, WHAT NEXT?

"What field will they invade next?" asks the harried male, as he sees the 'womentolk' taking over job after job once exclusively performed by the stronger sex. The following tale will not add to his peace of mind but may help to solace him a little on the theory that misery loves company.

Since time immemorial it has been the unquestioned right of the buck to wear the antlers. Now all is changed. The Royal Ontario Museum recently acquired, though Mr. Frank MacDougall, Deputy Minister of Lands and Forests, an antlered white-tailed doe, from Algonquin Park.

Antlered does are not unknown, but usually the antlers are under-developed, malformed and frequently consist merely of two spikes. It is not so in this case, for the antlers are symmetrical in form, have a spread of nineteen inches, carry nine points and would equal or excel many heads of bucks so proudly displayed by the successful deer hunter.

Move over Mr. Man and make room in the dog-house for Mr. Buck to lower his once proud antlered head.

Canada's Progress is Emphasized

The unprecedented progress of Canada in this World War II as a source of production and supply for foreign countries is being reiterated in the present echoes of the very important role which Canada is going to play in the operations of the great international organization, United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, which is being set up to feed, to clothe and to provide other material aid to the peoples of the territories which have been victims of the Axis aggressions or invasions as soon as this will be possible or the enemies driven out of these territories. Moreover, it had been planned originally that each country would contribute about one per cent of its national income to carry out the work of this world organization but certain countries had indicated that they would be unable to do so, with the result that changes have been made and the administrative costs of this international body will be paid 40 per cent by the United States, 15 per cent each by Great Britain and Soviet Russia, 5 per cent by China and the balance by other nations in proportion to their ability.

More FOOD NEEDED As Victory Draws Nearer

As the United Nations invade the Axis-dominated countries, famished populations as well as our fighting forces must be fed. The need for food increases as victory draws nearer.

NEWS FOR THE BUSY FARMER

APPLE TREE PRUNING OFTEN MISUNDERSTOOD

Although pruning of apple trees has been practised from the earliest days of apple culture, it is the one orchard operation that is most generally misunderstood in its practical application. D. S. Blair, Horticultural Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, told the Northumberland and Durham Apple Growers' Association in a recent address. Orchardists were not entirely to blame, he said, because it was only within the last quarter century that carefully planned experiments had been conducted to study the effect of pruning upon growth and fruiting. Even today leading authorities could not agree on some of the minor details.

When pruning, the grower should have a definite plan in mind, whether the trees were young or old. The purpose of pruning the young non-bearing tree was primarily to train or shape the tree, so that the main scaffold branches would develop strong wide-angled crotches capable of bearing fruit without breakage. This training should develop a framework capable of supporting heavy crops of fruit when the tree reached bearing age. The aim in a commercial orchard was not to produce a tree pleasing to the eye but rather one that was commercially profitable within a reasonable period of time.

The main objective in pruning bearing trees was to prevent the trees from becoming too dense, so that sunlight could reach all parts of the tree to assist in carbohydrate manufacture and the colouring of fruit; also to facilitate orchard operations, such as spraying, thinning, and picking. Another purpose was to remove weak growing wood throughout the tree which never produced fruit of satisfactory size and quality. With trees in full bearing, pruning assisted proper fertilizer applications and other soil management practices in maintaining a good growth condition in the trees.

HORSE SENSE IN HORSE HEALTH

Veterinary authorities point out that in this mechanical age there are farms on which the horse is one of the most neglected animals. Horse blankets are almost unknown, and the curry comb and brush have long since disappeared. About the only redeeming feature on some farms is that the horses are allowed to run out, so they have the opportunity, at least partially, to take care of themselves. Yet the horse is still one of the most valuable sources of farm power. Proper nourishment is extremely important to the horse's well-being, and is one of the three essentials in maintaining the health of the horse. The second essential is that when a horse is not working he should be given the run of the pasture or a lot large enough to afford ample exercise. The third is that the horse should have a good shelter to protect against severe wind and cold.

CEDAR BLOCK HOUSE FOR LAYING HENS

A cedar block poultry laying house is the most economical to build and may be duplicated on any farm carrying a cedar woodlot. The idea is not new but a laying house of this type is the logical one for wartime construction. The Dominion Department of Agriculture gives some information about the cedar block laying house on the farm of Chester R. Benny, Jr. Ste. Melanie, Joliette County, P.Q. This house is an example of how a comfortable well-insulated laying house of two storeys accommodating 500 layers may be built of cedar blocks for $800.

The walls are made of cedar blocks eight inches long, set in mortar. No studding is required. The window frames, the floor joists for the second floor, and the rafters are all set in mortar. Necessary ventilation is provided by weighted sliding windows. The $800 includes an allowance for logging, sawing of the logs, and the services of the planing mill, including the assembly of the windows. One bricklayer and one carpenter were employed to build the house.

Two thousand pounds of lime and 60 bags of cement were required to set the cedar blocks and for the lower floor which is cement. Cedar block construction is widely used for dairy barns and other farm buildings. All wood blocks should be properly air dried before being used. Wood block houses provide such good insulation that no condensation appears on the walls in the coldest weather.

WEEDS COST FARMERS MILLIONS OF DOLLARS

By reducing the volume of crops and depreciating the fertility of the land, weeds cost the farmers of Canada millions of dollars every year. In time of peace, weed control is one of the most important phases of agriculture. In time of war when more and more food must be produced, weed control is vital. In this work the National Weed Committee is carrying out an energetic campaign, its Secretary, W. H. Wright, Plant Products Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, being in direct communication with all agricultural authorities and farmers throughout the Dominion. All methods of weed extermination and control are under review.

In the chemical control of weeds, a recent test at one of the Dominion Experimental Farms serves as an object lesson. A plot of fibre plant badly infested with wild radish (similar to wild mustard) was treated on half of its area with cyanamid dust. In the treated part, the weed received such a setback that the crop at once took the lead and for the remainder of the season smothered any of the dwarfed weeds that might have regained vigour. On the untreated part, the wild radish flourished from the beginning and was rapidly maturing seed by the second week of August, while the crop was only half the height of the fibre in the treated part. In this instance, the fertilizing value of the cyanamid to the crop and its herbicidal action on the weed added to make the contrast more striking, but the same result in varying degrees must follow elimination of competition by weeds however secured, for example by other herbicide preparations, such as iron sulphate or copper sulphate for spraying. These remedies can be used safely in cereal or grass crops, but not in clover. Obviously, they are unnecessary in crops that can be cleaned by intertillage or by late spring cultivation before sowing.

According to the research carried out by Professor T. K. Pavlychenko, University of Saskatchewan, perennial weeds are eradicated by chemical herbicides, not by the direct destruction of the roots but by indirectly producing a durable sterility of the top soil which prevents growth above ground until the underground parts not in direct contact with the chemical perish of suffocation and starvation.

BREAKS EIGHTEEN YEAR OLD CANADIAN RECORD

A new Canadian Record for production of both milk and butterfat has been set by Pauline Alcartra Findorne DeKol, a purebred holstein owned by Elliott Bros., Woodstock, Ontario, in the junior two-year-old class of the 305 day division on twice-a-day milking. She gave 726 lbs. butterfat from 19,605 lbs. milk to break the record of 590 lbs. butterfat from 19,381 lbs. milk made by Alcartra Komdyke Snowball, owned by B. H. Thomson, Moose Jaw, Sask., back in 1926. Continued tinued on test for the full year, "Pauline" finished with 762 lbs. butterfat from 20,445 lbs. milk which production is the second largest for butterfat ever recorded in the 305 day division in Canada. She was bred by Wm. Moore, Watford, Ontario.

Dramatic Episodes Foreshadowed

Although it may not be fully reflected in the outward appearance at the moment in the nation's capital, yet it is considered highly significant is usually well-informed quarters backstage of the actual drama along Parliament Hill that the Liberals, Progressive-Conservatives, C.C.F., and other parties are increasing steadily their political activities in Ottawa in continuous efforts to gain popular support amongst the masses in the general election of the near future at the same time as the problems are multiplying rapidly for the King Government. In reality, the political parties seem to be getting quickly into position for one of the most exciting political battles in the history of Canada. At least, there has not been a similar state of political affairs in Ottawa since the start of World War II in the view of this veteran, impartial observer, though this may not appear on the surface at the moment. At the same time as the political fever has been rising in Ottawa, the difficulties of the King Government have been rendered more difficult since speculation has been increasing about the ways and means to be used by this Government to satisfy public opinion and to solve the unusually heavy accumulation of delicate controversial problems which have been brought to the foreground of public opinion and other circumstances after the close of the last session on August 1, 1943, with some of these serious problems rising from the proposal on reconstruction and social security for the people of this country, mutual aid for Canada's partners in this war, changes in the much-publicized Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, provisions for the votes of the armed services in the next general elections, Canada's share of responsibility in the relief and rehabilitation of liberated countries, huge war appropriations, annual budget, wartime controls, and other problems of popular interest to the masses of this country. With the political pot already boiling over and this war approaching a climax, this unusually heavy accumulation of problems for the King Government may cause an unusually important page of history to be written in this nation's capital in the coming weeks as well as much news of extraordinary interest.

Surprising Development

Undoubtedly, the man-in-the-street throughout Canada will be very much surprised to learn that from 1940 when the Canadian Congress of Labor was first organized under its present designation until its latest report, its total membership has increased from only 55,000 to more than 250,000, with

778. This marks a new turn of events in labor organizations as well as politics in this country because the Canadian Congress of Labor, which has the aid of the C.I.O. groups here, has indicated its support of the C.C.F.

Changes and Admonition

It is reported that the president-elect of the Canadian Medical Association, Dr. Harris McPhedran, has come forth with the assertion that medical men do not favour a new system of state medicine along the line proposed by a certain political party, even if some important changes may come in the practice of this profession, arguing that, though the medical profession approved in principle health insurance in no uncertain language yet at the same time the people of Canada should guard against anything which may cause health insurance from becoming a possible "political football". Moreover, he stated in part that it was most desireven in the remotest sections, would be able to obtain such essential medical care as well as the best possible benefits of preventive medicine.

How Much is a Dollar Worth?

A dollar is worth as much as it can buy. For instance, during the last world war people paid 65¢ for a pound of butter... while you pay around 38¢ today. It is the same with shoes and the other necessities of life. In 1917, they paid $15.00 and you now pay $8.00 for the same quality. This means your dollar is worth more than the dollar of 1914-18. You get more for your money — because price ceilings and other anti-inflationary measures have kept the value of your dollar HIGH! And you will keep your dollar high in value by using money wisely. You protect your dollar's worth every time you buy a bond... Pass up some needless luxury... Pay off a debt... Refuse to hoard goods... And refuse to frequent black markets. That's how to make money with your present dollars! Remember, dollars are worth less if they buy less.

HYDRO Lightens The Way

● The familiar Hydro towers, striding across the countryside, are symbolic of a great public enterprise that has contributed much to the development of Ontario. Along the transmission lines, carried by these towers, flows the power that lightens the way in many thousands of homes, industries and farms.

Hydro power is accessible. It reaches out across the miles to far off city, town or farm... ready to serve at the flip of a switch.

Hydro power is flexible. It turns the wheels of our factories, mills and mines. It weaves our cloth, grinds our grain, milks our cows, pumps our water. It lifts our elevators, washes our clothes, refrigerates and cooks our food. It lights our homes, runs our radios. Day and night it serves our needs, in hundreds of different ways.

Hydro power is dependable. Well-equipped emergency crews and repair equipment stand by day and night ready to keep power flowing at all times.

Hydro power is economical. Through the years it is one factor, essential to our everyday living, that has been consistently reduced in price.

Hydro serves the people in thousands of ways. It brings them comfort, ease and convenience. Yet, Hydro's contribution to the welfare of the people, up to now, is but a preview of the promise which the electrical world holds for tomorrow. Since war began, electricity has been, and will be, available wherever and whenever it is required by our war industries. When peace comes, electricity will contribute much toward creating new and certain to contribute much toward creating new and finer standards of living. This indispensable element in our everyday life, lightens the way in everything we do.

STIRLING HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY

The Stirling Horticultural Society report another active and successful year. While actual membership was down somewhat, results hit a new high.

The outstanding achievement was in passing the $100.00 objective set in favour of the local Red Cross branch, the amount turned over being $113.50.

The usual planting of the cemetery bed and library boxes, assistance with school beds, and distribution of plants, seeds, etc., as premiums was carried out.

The annual Flower Show and supper was highly successful, although the entries were fewer. This may have been due to the fact that the Society decided to turn all moneys collected, over to the Red Cross and omit prizes for the 1943 show.

The showing at the Stirling Fall Fair was light owing to the lateness of the date of that event.

For the present year it has been

CUTS FOOT WITH AXE

Donald Stewart 19, of Seymour Township was treated in the Campbellford hospital, on Wednesday afternoon following an accident in which he severely cut his left foot with an axe. He was working for Mr. Chester Meiklejohn, Rawdon Township when the axe he was using glanced off a tree and cut through his shoe into the top of the foot just below the ankle. Mr. Meiklejohn rushed him by car, a distance of seven miles, to the hospital and on arriving Stewart was beginning to show signs of weakness from the loss of blood. It is expected he will be able to leave the hospital in two or three days.

"Sorry, miss," replied the customer. "But don't you worry; you can pay me the twopence another time." "But you may never see me again." "Well, what the odds?" he said, meaning to be gallant. "I won't break my heart if I don't."

HOCKEY

TRENTON DEFEATS LOCAL "COMBINES"

In one of the best games seen at the local arena in a long time Trenton Juniors defeated the Stirling-Marmora Combines on Monday night by a score of 7-6. The locals led practically throughout until the last few minutes when the defence blew wide open and allowed the visitors to sift through for the tying and winning goals, the latter coming with only seconds to go to the final whistle. The tying goal was hotly disputed by the local players and fans, those in a position to see claiming the puck hit the post, but the Trenton goal judge claimed it was in the net and Referee Cousins took his word for it. Over five hundred fans were in attendance. Patterson, local right winger, performed the hat trick with three goals to his credit. B. Bastedo, Tremble and Lavender scoring the others.

Play opened at a fast clip and the locals opened the scoring in some six minutes with B. Bastedo beating Harvey on a pass from Utman. Trenton came back with two in a row, the first by Hamilton and the other by Johnston. However, their lead was shortlived as Patterson cut loose with his best display of the season to rattle the twine behind the visiting goalie three times in less than three minutes. All were on passes from the Bastedo boys. The score at the end of the period was 4-2 for the "Combines."

In the second period both teams checked closely with each scoring one, Filion for Trenton, and Tremble for the locals. The period count was 5-3.

Trenton took the offensive in the final period and tallied twice to tie the score. But the locals again took the lead with only two minutes remaining to play, when Lavender stickhandled through the whole visiting team to beat Harvey and it looked as though they would maintain their unbeaten record at home ice. However they lapsed defensively and the visitors rattled home two quick ones to take the game and first place in the league play-offs. The final score was 7-6.

For the locals the line of Patterson and the Bastedo brothers was outstanding. Between them they accounted for four goals and backchecked well all through the game. The line of Cousins, Tremble and Goodchild worked hard but were not as effective as in former games. The defence, outside of the one lapse, played a strong game and was well backed up by McInroy in the nets.

Hamilton, Lamorre, Maxwell and Johnston looked the best up front for the winners, while Filion spearheaded the defence. Stojan was closely watched all night and had little chance to show.

Referee—E. Cousins, Marmora.

ZION LEADS RURAL LEAGUE

Zion won their third straight game in the Central Rural League Tuesday night and retained their position at the top when they defeated Corbyville by the score of 6-1. In the other part of the doubleheader West Huntingdon defeated Centenary 4-2.

Zion vs Corbyville

Zion was much the better in the first period, and led 3-0 at its close. G. Tummon got the first on a pass from Sims, Dr. Empeon, the second from G. Tummon and Sims, and G. Tummon the third from Sims.

Corbyville got their only tally shortly after the opening of the second period when Gray counted unassisted. Zion continued to have the best of the play and added three more before the close of the game. Sims with two and Tummon were the scorers.

West Huntingdon vs Centenary

The West Huntingdon squad opened with a rush and D. Fargey scored their first, to be followed in order by R. Silks and H. Hagerman. The score at the close of the period was 3-0.

Each tallied in the second, L. Silks for the winners and F. Waite for Centenary to make the count 4-1. Only one goal was counted in the final period, Cole beating Hagerman on a close-in drive. The final score was 4-2.

Friday's Games

Zion Hill pucksters went to the top of their league at Stirling Friday night as in winning their second straight game of the season they downed the Centenary sextette by a decisive 6-2 score. In the other half of the evenings double bill, West Huntingdon scored a shutout over Corbyville when they rang in five goals without a return.

Scoring three goals in the initial frame West Huntingdon made sure of their game against the league's new entrant Corbyville with Fargey finding the net twice on passes from R. Silks and L. Silks. Don Tucker scored the other Huntingdon goal in the first period while C. Wright and Hagerman counted at the halfway mark in the second and R. Silks beat Martin in the last period for the last score of the game.

Zion vs Centenary

Ed Simms put the Zion Hill pucksters in the lead when he scored the only goal of the first period on passes from Walt and Ray. Centenary evened matters in the second, however, with Donnelly counting on passes from F. Waite and Cole, and F. Waite putting his team one up on a solo effort. Centenary's lead was shortlived as Jarrell counted for Zion at the eight minute mark on a pass from Carl Thompson. Third period scores were all made by Zion with Jarrell getting his second goal of the night and Thompson counting on three occasions, on a pass from M. Guay.

A CHARTERED bank is an institution where the details of your bank account are kept secret.

It is called "chartered" because its permission to do business and the conditions and restrictions under which it may do business, are contained in a charter granted and kept up-to-date by parliament, the finest democratic free institution of government that man has yet devised. This charter is an Act of Parliament laying down all of the conditions which safeguard your money.

Ten competing chartered banks are the very opposite of a State Monopoly such as would come about if all the banks were rolled into one by nationalization. Under State Monopoly, if you failed to get accommodation at the one bank, you could not go to any one of nine others to seek it. You can today;

Life In The C.W.A.C.

By Sgt. Joyce McKee

Dear Babs:

This is the swan song! The next group of khaki-clad girls who set foot in old England, will include your happy friend, Nickey. Isn't it thrilling? I have to pinch myself to be sure that I am not dreaming. As a matter of fact, I have been ever since I knew that I was elected. I can see myself gazing at the lions in Trafalgar Square . . . Kew Gardens in Springtime . . . Westminster Abbey . . . London! Not that I expect it to be a Cook's Tour! I will have a job to do, the important job of replacing a man in an army orderly room.

Friends of mine with the C.W.A.C. in England have been very fortunate in seeing the country and so I am very hopeful. Most of them have been up to Scotland for one or more leaves and report that they have been treated royally. Pte Mary Ferguson of Belleville, Ont., is one of the lucky girls who have spent leave in Scotland.

Overseas, one week's leave is granted every three months, so this makes it possible to rove around and explore. Many of the girls have been welcomed into English country homes for week-ends and are enthusiastic converts to the English way of life. They assure me that stories about English hauteur and reserve are bunk.

From all I hear, the life of a CWAC overseas is very comfortable, so I am not expecting to experience many spartan rigours. In London, C.W.A.C. live in luxurious mansions with central heating and open fireplaces. In the recreation room there are deep lounges, writing desks and game tables, just as we have here. The girls are too busy with their work and recreational activities to be homesick. Actually, living in barracks is like belonging to a big, gay, friendly family.

They have a weekly movie night and a film is shown in the recreation room and at other times, parties, dances and concerts are arranged between the women of the A.T.S., the WRENS and the WAAFS. C.W.A.C. repay individual hospitality extended to them by entertaining their friends in the "Rec." Room. Here will usually be found several Canadian lads on leave, enjoying the opportunity of a chat with Canadian girls again.

There always seems to be something "cooking" and that is not just a figure of speech, either. C. W. A. C. cooks prepare plenty of good, wholesome food for everyone and the girls tuck in with a will. They are thriving, some have gained many pounds since leaving Canada. Though there is a shortage of candies overseas, C.W.A.C. can obtain three chocolate bars a week from their canteen, so you can see for yourself that it is not likely that I will be facing acute privation.

I have always thought of our issue clothing as being very complete but I find that further articles will be issued to us before going overseas. These will include nylon toothbrushes, warm bedroom slippers and heavy flannel pajamas.

So another chapter in my service in the C.W.A.C. is closing. I put it away reluctantly though I am looking forward eagerly to proving my mettle in the British Isles. There is always a sadness about "farewell" and I have made many good friends in M. D. No. 3. There are "good-byes" to be said to my family too, and that is not easy.

I look to you, Babs, to make a good job of "keeping the home fires burning" until Victory dawns and all of us come marching home. Strange, isn't it, to think of men and women in uniform marching together in that "Victory Parade?"

Ever your friend,
NICKEY

Magistrate: "Now my boy, do you understand the nature of an oath?"
Boy: "Aint I your caddie?"

He (haughtily): "I can go out with any girl I please."
She: "It's too bad you don't please any of them."

LUNCH BOX PARTY FOR VALENTINE'S

Hello Homemakers! A box party has many possibilities for entertaining children—and it's time to plan for their Valentine party. Have the children decorate a box or basket. Let them clip coloured pictures and paste on attractively. Each box should hold several small sandwiches, (use brown and white bread spread with egg, vegetable, cheese or jelly filling), raw crisp carrot or turnip strips, a muffin and some cookies. Wrap each food separately in waxed paper. Place the lunch in neatly together with a serviette. The tea party will then be complete with the exception of the hot chocolate to be prepared by the hostess, who will have very few dishes to wash afterwards.

Valentine Sandwiches

24 thin slices of white bread,
1 cream cheese (three ounces),
2 tablespoons butter or margarine,
1-8 teaspoon salt, 1 small bottle Maraschino cherries.

Cut fluted rounds from the slices of bread. Cut small hearts from 12 slices. Soften cheese and butter and blend, add salt and enough liquid from cherries to make mixture of spreading consistency. Spread whole slices with cheese mixture, sprinkle center of each with cherries minced and cover with remaining slices. Makes 12 sandwiches.

Lacy Oatmeal Cookies

2-1/4 cups regular oatmeal, 2-1/4 cups light brown sugar, 3 table-spoons salt, 1 cup cooking fat, 1 egg slightly beaten, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla.

Combine first four ingredients. Add cooking fat and stir. Add egg and vanilla. Drop spoonful of batter, 2 inches apart on a greased cookie sheet. Bake in electric oven (325-350 F.) for 12 minutes. Top with Maraschino cherries cut in halves.

Raisin Muffins

2 tablespoons shortening, 1-4 cup corn syrup, 1 egg, 1 cup packaged bran, 1-3 cup milk, 1 cup flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2-1/2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 cup raisins.

Cream shortening and corn syrup thoroughly; add egg and beat well. Stir in bran and milk; let soak 5 mins. Sift flour, salt and baking powder. Add to first mixture and stir in raisins. Pour into greased tins. Bake in electric oven at 400 degrees for 30 minutes.

TAKE A TIP

1. Take precautions to serve foods providing Vitamin C in ample amounts. Due to seasonal conditions (one being the loss of the C vitamin in potatoes now so long stored), the most helpful foods are: citrus fruits, oven-canned tomatoes, potatoes (cooked in the skins), raw cabbage and turnip, black currants in any form, and other fruits contribute a little. Serve slaw, crispy turnip sticks and grated turnips in mixed salads. Cook vegetables in as little water as possible—as short a time as will make them tender—and serve at once; standing steals their Vitamin C—don't expose them to air until on the family's plates. That means covering with a tea towel if they have to stand.

2. Serve baked potatoes three times a week is a good slogan.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. C. M. asks: Recipe for Carrot Marmalade.

Answer: Carrot and Orange Marmalade—6 medium-sized carrots, 3 oranges, 1 lemon, juice and grated rind; sugar.

Dice carrots and cook until tender, using as little water as possible. Cut oranges and lemon into small pieces. Combine carrots and fruit and add two-thirds as much sugar as mixture. Simmer mixture until it is clear and thickened. Use electric element on Low after product begins to boil. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal.

Mrs. D. T. asks: Why do the standard ingredients for butter tarts become dry and hard.

Answer: Do not use too much egg in the mixture (small egg to 1 cup sugar). The tarts may have been baked at too high temperature—use 400 degrees for small tarts and small quantities, and 25 degrees more for two or three pans.

Mrs. J. R. asks: Recipe for potato stuffing for tenderloin.

Answer: Potato Stuffing—3 cups mashed potatoes, 1 cup soft bread crumbs, 1-2 cup melted butter, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning, 1 beaten egg, 2 tablespoons chopped onion. Mix above ingredients together lightly with a fork.

Comparatively Better

In regard to the large number of influenza cases which have occurred in various sections across Canada, it has been obvious that these cannot be compared in any way to the tragic influenza epidemic of 1918. In fact, the existence has been most marked in the fall and early winter, and from the first year of World War II, this disease has accounted for a majority rate in this country of 3,955 in 1939, 2789 in 1940, 2411 in 1941, and 1219 in the last year.

"RACING DRIVER"

By ALEXANDER CAMPBELL

Sixth Instalment

"I should hope not! Don't forget that I am engaged."

"—but I hope that you will return in time."

"You are engaged," Frank went on grimly. "I am aware of it. I haven't met your fiancée. But you have told me enough about him for me to have a pretty shrewd estimate of his character. In the story-books (supposing I were the hero of the story) he would turn out to be a rascal. We should discover that he drank, was cruel to animals, and had a secret wife. But in fact I know very well that he is a thoroughly estimable young man."

"There is only one really serious flaw in his character, so far as his being your fiancée is concerned—he isn't in love with you! You told me yourself how he destroyed your photographs, and all the rest of it. If he were really in love with you, he would have insisted on being married to you before he allowed himself to be sent on this mission for your father. And if you have been in love with him, you would have insisted on going with him!"

Frank paused. He was breathing a little harder than usual. He had said perhaps more than he had intended.

"Dorothy," he implored. "I'm not asking you to consider me at the moment. But so far as your engagement is concerned, don't you see, that I'm right? If you marry Rupert, you will be making a terrible mistake!"

"Mr. Carter," said Dorothy firmly. "Listen to me."

At that moment the moon slid out from behind a wrack of clouds. He saw her face, and his heart sank.

If he had hoped by his impassioned speech to break down her defences, and get at what he considered to be a real girl underneath, he had failed. She looked perfectly serene and calm; not amused, for which at least he was thankful, but taking him seriously and preparing to deal with him firmly—the perfect emotionless super-intellect of Rupert's fashioning.

"Some days ago," said Dorothy, "you and I had an argument about emotion and the havoc it plays. You are a romantic; I am a realist. You were shocked because my fiancée and I had destroyed our picture of each other; I pointed out to you that this was the only way to keep our relationship on a rational basis instead of allowing it to drift off into dreamland, with the inevitable rude awakening for both of us."

Dr. Schwartzvogel intervenes

"I respect my fiancée, and he respects me. That is a far surer basis for marriage than romantic idylls."

"What has happened since then proves that I am right and you are wrong. You say you've fallen in love with me. Really, what nonsense! You've known me for less than a fortnight, spoken to me on only two or three occasions!"

"With all due respect, you're a perfect example of the romantic at his worst. If I allowed you, you would rush into what they call a love affair—and after a little while you would be thoroughly sorry for yourself!"

"No, I wouldn't," said Frank stoutly.

"Yes, you would. You know nothing about me. As you discovered how different our temperaments were, you would be appalled. You would wonder what you had let yourself in for. For believe me, there is no greater gulf fixed than that between the realist and the romantic!"

"The last sentence," said Frank bitterly, "sounds very like a quotation. From Rupert?"

"Now you are losing your temper," she said calmly. "That is very foolish. It means that we can't continue this discussion, by which I might succeed in proving that you are completely mistaken when you imagine you are in love with me. As a matter of fact, the remark is not a quotation from Rupert. It is a quotation from Dr. Schwartzvogel, who—"

"Oh, my hat!" moaned Frank.

"What is it?"

Frank surveyed her grimly.

"You win. A girl who, when informed that a man is in love with her, can quote Dr. Schwartzvogel—well, I ask you!"

"I knew you wouldn't understand," she said tranquilly. "But surely that by itself proves that our temperaments are miles apart!"

"You have said it," said Frank emphatically. They are. I apologise, Dorothy. And now, if you don't mind, I'll say good-night!"

He turned on his heel. Dorothy found herself alone on the upper deck.

South Atlantic Dawn

Dawn broke softly, and the sleeping passengers in the Athlone Tower awoke to shrill cries rendering the air. The ship was motionless, at anchor in the bay at Funchal, the capital of Madeira. The shrill cries were produced by small boys in boats which swarmed round the ship.

"Ulllo there! Ulllo! Spik Inglesse here! Ave a good time! Throw pennies, boy dived, you see fine sport!"

Frank stood at the rail with Florence Shaw, laughing he flipped a coin. It hit the surface of the water, and sank slowly in the translucent depths. It did not sink far. A small brown figure dived from one of the boats, grabbed the coin, and came to the surface shaking water from his eyes.

The background to this scene was a coral island bowered with flowers, looming against a coral sky.

"They're marvellous!" said Florence. Her eyes shone and her lips were parted.

Frank had found the vivacious girl a cheerful companion, with whom he had spent much time since his rebuttal by Dorothy.

"Madeira," he said, "is one of the few picturesque spots left. He spoke on impulse. 'Would you care to come ashore with me?'"

"I'd love it," said Florence promptly.

"Good! Then that's a bargain."

Dorothy came on deck. Overnight, she had made an important decision. Perhaps, she had decided, she had been rather cruel. She had hurt his feelings. She might have put her point of view less bluntly. He had been very sincere; and his sincerity had touched her. She was confident that he would ask her to go ashore at Madeira with him; and she had decided to accept.

She looked cool and lovely in the early morning light, and Frank's heart missed a beat as he saw her.

"Good morning!" he said.

He was astounded when she smiled charmingly.

"Good morning, Frank. Are you going ashore?"

"Yes," said Frank. He felt almost guilty. "I—"

"Good morning. Miss Ellington!" Florence, who had slipped away was back.

"Hurry, Frank!" she said briskly. "I want you to hire that marvellous looking man as a guide. She pointed triumphantly in the direction of a crowd of clamouring guides who had just come ashore. "The one with the squint."

"But why that one?" asked Frank doubtfully.

"Because he's promised to show us places the ordinary tourist doesn't see. Besides, he looks as though he'd just murdered his grandmother!"

"The logic seems a bit weird," said Frank dubiously. "Don't you think we'd be better with one of the regulation company guides?"

"Oh, no. They're dull. In this church - you - will - see - the - tomb of - the - emperor—that sort of thing. But I'm sure George can show us much more romantic things."

"Is his name George?"

Besides, I've promised him we'll go, so you must."

Frank moved resignedly in the direction of George.

Dorothy remained where she was. That was that. She would have to seek another partner with whom to go ashore. It was a relief, of course.

George awaited Frank, with a cheery grin. Or presumably it was his idea of a cheery grin. But it made Frank realize how apt was Florence's description. George indeed looked as though he had come fresh from the butchery of his aged grandmother.

A small wizened man with a wrinkled brown face and a collarless shirt in which the brassy studs gleamed yellow, he had broken teeth of a colour to match. His brown eyes squinted uncannily. Pushed back on his head was a battered black cap. A home-made cigarette dangled from his lower lip.

With a Cross-Eyed Guide

He pranced in front of Frank like an agitated monkey, brandishing a guidebook.

"You come with me, I show you all the sights. The mountains! The flowers! The bay! The monuments historical! The—"

"Yes, yes! All right!" said Frank soothingly. "We'll go with you."

George relaxed. He blew out garlicy breath. He sighed. He smiled.

"It is settled. It is good. I have a car. First—one pound note English."

Frank handed over one pound note English.

George led them to the ladder leading down to the launch bobbing alongside the great ship, stood courteously on one side to let them precede him. Frank waved him on. "You go first."

A ship's officer watched them with a frown. He touched Frank on the sleeve.

"I'd keep an eye on that bird, if I were you," he murmured. "He's a slippery customer."

Frank nodded. "Thanks for the tip. I will."

When they were seated in the launch and speeding for the shore—

"What did he say?" asked Florence curiously.

"He said we mustn't linger ashore," said Frank. "The ship sails early in the afternoon."

The launch was filled with passengers. When the boat reached the jetty most of them were led, rather like a flock of sheep, towards quaint carriages drawn by big-muscled swarthy men. But George led Frank and Florence away from the main group.

"We go by car," he announced in a superior voice.

Florence looked back rather longingly at the carriages with their gaily coloured awnings.

"If you'd like to change your mind —," began Frank.

"Not a bit!" said Florence quickly. "Well stick to George. But I hope his car is a good one."

She gazed dubiously at the steep road which wound up the vine-covered hill ahead of them.

Their doubts were not dispelled by the sight of George's car. Ramshackle and battered, one of the doors was very obviously held in place by string.

"Drive us through the town first," suggested Frank.

"Of course! Of course! A pleasure!"

With brisk confidence George climbed into the driving seat. The car started with a snort, a roar, and a nerve-shaking jar.

Very soon, however, they forgot these minor discomforts in the fascination of the town of Funchal. The streets were narrow, cobbled and winding. Shops crowded together like blackberries on a bush. The shops were open to the public gaze, and they had glimpses of blacksmiths plying hammers, cobblers squatting cross-legged on little wooden benches, and men at work on the manufacture of musical instruments. The crowds in the street were a heterogeneous but friendly looking lot. Most of them waved cheerily to George, who, at some risk to the accuracy of his steering, waved back.

Small boys and girls ran alongside the car, begging for pennies. At only one point did George seem disconcerted. A policeman, to whose costume a touch of griminess was added by the leather holster on his belt, gave him a sharp look. He seemed to ponder some action, and half-raised his hand. Then he shrugged his shoulders and turned away. Florence did not note the incident. Frank did, but he made no comment. It merely confirmed his resolution to keep a close eye on their guide.

"The Street of Difficulty!" pronounced George grandiloquently, and the car toiled up a hill of incredible steepness. The vehicle emitted strange sounds. Frank thought uneasily of the still steeper hill which lay ahead.

Blackmail with Flowers

He glimpsed some of their fellow passengers being shepherded on to the tiny platform of Funchal's curious railway station, and had an inspiration.

He leaned forward and tapped George on the shoulder.

"We will go to the top of the mountain by the train. Drive to the junction and wait for us."

George braked. He turned a face of despair.

"But I am hired. I am the guide. I—"

"That's enough!" said Frank sharply. "We have decided to make this part of the trip by train. We'll meet you at the top. Besides, you've been paid in advance."

"Ver' well!" George descended and threw open the car door for them. But a deep scowl had settled on his swarthy face.

"I have been insulted," he murmured through his teeth. "My beautiful car has been insulted."

Frank decided to ignore the fellow.

They climbed into one of the open carriages of the train. Ahead of them, the steel track climbed at an incredible gradient, a narrow way on either side of which gardens bursting with fruit clung to the hillsides.

The train began to move.

They moved upwards at a leisurely pace.

The small children who had pursued them in the streets ran alongside of the carriage, shouting for pennies. They had gathered large bunches of vividly coloured flowers, and with these they began to pelt the occupants of the carriage.

Frank picked a bunch laughingly from the floor of their carriage where it had fallen and handed it to Florence.

"Thank you," she said. "They're lovely. I— Look out!"

Flowers were now coming through the window fast and furious. They were forced to dodge the soft and no doubt well-intentioned missiles. Very soon the carriage began to look like a garden. Flowers lay in their laps, strewn the seats and the floor.

Frank put his head out of the window.

"That's enough!" he shouted. "Stop it, you little blighters! Ough!"

A full-blown rose had caught him neatly in the eye.

"It's a very polite form of blackmail," laughed Florence. "They won't stop until you throw them pennies."

Frank emptied his pockets of pennies and threw them out to the eager children. The cascade of flowers ceased.

baby who needs evaporated milk in his diet. Will she be able to obtain ration coupons to buy it while she is here?

A—Yes, she should make application to your Local Ration Board. Special "G" coupons for this purpose are issued to visitors to Canada on exactly the same basis as they are issued to Canadian citizens.

Q—I am thinking of buying a retail business and believe there is some regulation that must be observed in that connection. What is it?

A—You must apply to the nearest office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board for a permit entitling you to enter the business in question. Please give complete particulars when making application.

Q—Is it true that the butter ration is to be reduced before the winter is over?

A—That depends altogether upon the state of butter supply and specially on the amount of butter that is manufactured. It has been intimated that if considerable improvement does not take place, it may be necessary to effect at least a temporary reduction in the ration.

Q—I understand that some of the "F" coupons are to be used for the purchase of canned sugar next summer. Does that mean "F" coupons in the next ration book or in the book now being used?

A—The "F" coupons to be used are those in the present ration book. All holders desiring canned sugar next summer should, therefore, retain their present ration books even after the No. 4 books have been issued.

Q—Last year people in the next township were given 15 pounds of canned sugar, whereas we received only 10 pounds. Will that inequality be repeated this year?

A—Happily it won't be. The allowance this year is to be 10 pounds per person regardless of where they live. Consumers may, however, augment their stock of canned sugar by exchanging preserves coupons for it at the rate of one-half pound of sugar per preserves coupon.

from the past and insulate yourself. A visit to the Royal Ontario Museum shows that padded clothes were worn in many parts of the world. In Europe our ancestors made great use of this practical idea. The ladies used to wear quilted petticoats to guard against the cold of their drafty, under-heated houses. An 18th century example made of bright pink silk, elaborately embroidered, is now on exhibition in the costume gallery. At this time men also used quilting, particularly for their waistcoats and dressing gowns. The Museum has recently been given an 18th century man's white satin dressing gown which is exquisitely and very finely quilted by hand.

INTERESTING FIGURES

Some interesting statistics appear in the annual report for 1943 of the Bell Telephone Company, just released.

In the past two years, 5,400 new employees have been engaged, to offset losses to the war service, resignations, etc. There were 11,915 Bell workers as of December 31, and 2,199 have enlisted for war service, of whom 22 have already given their lives.

There are 24,491 shareholders, 4,684 being employees and pensioners. Over 95 per cent of the shareholders live in Canada and hold 72 per cent of outstanding stock.

Last year $391,622 was paid out in pensions and disability benefits. Bell's wage bill last year was $21,340,267. Taxes took $13,609,000. This figure includes the refundable portion of the Excess Profits Tax $1,654,000. Dividends paid to the more than 24,000 shareholders were $6,779,189.

Although the gross revenues of $60,222,814 were 6.5 per cent more than for 1942, the net income, due to increased wages and taxes, was $6.95 per share as compared to $8.76 in 1942.

There were 134,059 telephones installed in 1943 and 103,360 taken out, a net gain for the year of 30,699.

There were 956,113 Bell and 169,801 connecting telephones in service on December 31, and average daily long distance calls were 98,000.

A WEEKLY EDITOR LOOKS AT Ottawa

Written specially for the weekly newspapers of Canada

Parliament Hill is somnolent-looking no more as the House is in session again; there is a fresh lilt to the walk of most folks coming up Wellington Street and entering the Peace Tower entrance; the members, from town, city, farm, mine and fishing village are back on the job—democracy starts clicking again. . . . Ottawa storemen were given a jolt the other day when a brisk salesman was around offering flags and bunting for sale, to be used for Armistice Day. No, he wasn't a bit early, he explained, this was the armistice when this war ends.

The next jolt may be coming to the salesman and others thinking the same way. . . . That well known Ottawa landmark, the 140,000 gallon water tower which reared above the Experimental Farm auditorium, crashed to the ground when fire destroyed the building recently.

We think of salvage as a civilian job, but it might interest you to know that the Army goes in for it in a big way, saving millions of dollars annually. A recent National Defence report showed that 826,000 pairs of boots and shoes were repaired and restored to service. They operate a boot repairing plant which can produce 1,500 pairs each week, using uppers stripped from condemned boots. Articles scrapped and resold realized $410,351. Reconditioned by contract, we noted, were damaged enamelware and galvanized utensils, including more than a thousand boilers and twenty thousand jugs, bowls, mugs and plates. Clothing repair and tailor shops made over three million repairs to garments of all kinds.

One of the interesting people at the national meeting in Ottawa of the 14 Regional Consumer Branch chairmen of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board was Mrs. Cameron Dow, lately appointed rural advisor to the branch. She is national president of the Federation of Women's Institutes. Mrs.

Dow in plain language said: "If inflation is ever allowed to get hold in this country, we're sunk. I remember what happened in the last war, and after. Even though we sold some of our stuff at a high price the things we had to buy were higher and in the long run we were worse off than before. That must not happen again." Mrs. Dow proves her faith in the value of checking prices by keeping accurate account of her purchases in her "Little Blue Book."

National income is supposed to give a pretty good indication of the national welfare. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics points out that for eleven months of 1943 it showed an increase of 18.4 per cent—a total of $8,072,000,000—over the similar period a year before. Production and transport of munitions and war supplies were the main generators for this huge amount, putting it at the highest level in Canadian history. Coincidental figures are interesting, too. The index of mineral production upped a little but gold receipts and coal production declined. Manufacturing production index showed an increase of 21.5 per cent. There were advances in operations of flour milling, meat packing, and in the tobacco industries, with a recession in newsprint output and of steel and iron. And Canada's domestic and foreign exports hit the astounding figure of $3,001 million, three times that of the previous year 1938.

The Minister of Labour is issuing an order which will put the onus on employers to check male employees of military call-up age to see if they have complied with mobilization regulations. An employer will include Dominion, provincial and municipal governments as well as private business or farmers as well as private business or farmers, even where the employee is a son or other relative of the farmer.

Americans are really big investors in Canada. A United States Treasury census reveals that American-owned property in foreign countries reaches over the nine billion dollar mark, 34 per cent of this being in Canada.

If you sometimes wonder why banks have increased staffs, put it against the large number of cheques that are issued, for one thing. Cheques cashed against individual accounts aggregated $53,797,000,000 during 1943, a new high point in Canadian history, too. Be sure to read that amount correctly, because it sure is passing the bucks and no fooling.

Agricultural Notes: The department advises potato growers to order their 1944 seed potato requirements without delay, and a list of growers having Certified, Foundation A or Foundation seed can be got from Plant Protection Division, Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa. As for potato acreage a five per cent increase is wanted for this year. Ontario, Manitoba and B. C. have each agreed to 10 per cent more acreage; Quebec and Alberta will aim for 5 per cent, the Maritimes with 1943 plantings greater than long-time average will maintain level of production, as will Saskatchewan.

The dental health of Canadians ranks among the best in the world but it will be given a fillip after this war by the way, our Dental Corps is looking after the men and women of the Armed Services. Over 1200 Canadian dentists are now serving with the Navy, Army and Air Force. Every sailor, soldier and airman is made dentally fit before going overseas or on active operations. And then a dental officer with his portable clinic goes with them wherever they go. Since the outbreak of the war over ten and a half million dental operations have been completed. A local preacher was asked to preach at a chapel about six miles from his home. Taking his wife with him, they reached the chapel at blackout time, the wife entering by the main door and her husband by the vestry door. A deacon found the lady a seat and brought her a hymn book. After the service he again went to her in a friendly manner and said, "I hope we shall have the pleasure of seeing you here again. We have some nice services here, but," he added an undertone, "it isn't often we get such a duffer in the pulpit as the one we've had tonight."

'Combines' Eliminate Tweed Jrs. In Semi-Finals In Two Straight

Took Second Game 7-5 To Win Round 17-10 — Meet Trenton in 3-Game Finals

The "Combines" visited Tweed Wednesday night for the second and what proved to be the final game in the semi-final round of the Junior O.H.A. Having defeated the Tweed aggregation by a score of 10 to 5 on Stirling ice, in the first of two out of three games, the Combines determined to make a quick finish and did just that by winning the Tweed game seven to five.

A rapid exchange of shots opened the game and both goalies gave notice that any counters were going to be earned. At 3.35 Utman made a beautiful solo effort from his own blue line, skated through his opposition and rifled in one of the fastest shots of the series. The game began to develop into heavy checking, the steady influence of Shannon being all that prevented it becoming a free for all. Combines did everything but score seven times in a row, but Jones was unbeatable. On a break-away C. Thompson tied it up for Tweed at 15.35 and "Spike" Meraw added another in a couple of minutes, after the defence were both drawn to one side leaving him in the clear.

Second Period
The second period had a carry-over from the roughing of the first, but towards the end the players realized that the box is a poor place to be and settled down to real tough hockey.

Utman again opened the scoring with another wicked shot, the goalie having no chance on it. This tied it up again and Goodchild followed with a well earned counter. D. Patterson followed with a counter half a minute later with a snap shot from a pass by Bert Bastedo. The Marmora line had the toughest kind of luck several times. They played a spectacular game in this period and repeatedly shot dead on goal only to have Jones deny them. G. Gehan finally closed the period with a goal for Tweed. Previous to Goodchild's goal, McIntosh was injured and was off for the balance of this period.

Third Period
Tweed developed a series of passing plays which resulted in "Spike" Meraw tying up the score and following with another in ten minutes, Rivers and Connor getting an assist on the first one and Connor on the second. This put Tweed one up, and the Combines really opened up, D. Bastedo getting a beauty from brother Bert and D. Patterson's passing.

On change of lines Trumble who had been having the hardest luck clipped a counter in and in one minute Goodchild followed to make the score seven to five. The Tweed aggregation played a much improved brand of hockey, after the first period and they deserve another game with the Combines if circumstances permit after the finals are over.

Final Score—Combines 7; Tweed, 5

First Period
Combines, Utman 3.35
Tweed, Thompson 15.35
Tweed, Meraw 17.28

He was keenly interested in athletics and was a member of the school hockey and rugby teams. In 1938 he won the Junior Championship Silver Trophy, and in 1938 (his final year) won the Strathcona medal for marksmanship.

2 Corps Signals, Canadian Army Overseas

Dear Mrs. Bailey,—

I am quite pleased to let you know that I have received a Christmas package from Rev. or Capt. Laverly, which you sent, for which I send you many thanks and my very greatest appreciation.

I really think it very nice of most of the folk in Canada for the way you all look after us over here. Of course, I must let you know that I am from the West Indies. Left home in the West Indies in October of 1941 and joined the Canadian Army that same month. I spent just 5 days in Canada before I joined the army.

Well, hope you all had a very nice Yuletide.

Yours very truly,

Screaming for help, she rushed into the adjoining apartment of Mrs. Elizabeth Duncan, who grabbed up a bedspread and endeavoured to smother the flames. Failing in this, she guided her to the bathroom and attempted to beat out the flames with a wet towel. Panic-stricken, Mrs. Wilson, broke away from Mrs. Duncan, and ran downstairs, where Mr. Geo. Richardson, another tenant, managed to extinguish the flames.

Dr. P. V. Helliwell, rendered medical aid and although her burns are quite painful, Mrs. Wilson's condition is showing improvement.

I.O.D.E. Entertains Guides, Brownies

Mrs. J. McC. Potts, Commissioner, Delivers Address — Fine Program Presented

The Hon. J. R. Cooke Chapter, I.O.D.E., entertained the 9th Stirling I. O. D. E. Girl Guide Troop and 7th Stirling I. O. D. E. Brownie Pack and their mothers on Thursday evening last in the Community Hall. The Guides and Brownies provided the programme, which opened with the singing of "O Canada." The Guides formed their horseshoe and the Brownies formed their Fairy ring, after which the Brownies sang their song and each group (Elves, Fairies, Gnomes, Kelpies), sang their songs. This was followed by the Brownie Prayer. Miss R. Spry, as Regent of I. O. D. E., presented the Brownies with a Toaststool, the emblem of their pack. Following this two recruits, Isabelle Brazill and Marie Jones were enrolled as Brownies and the Pack sang, "Brownie Taps."

The Guide Ceremony began next with the bringing up of the Colours, the singing of God Save the King and the repeating of the Guide Prayer. Then Patrol Leader Sybil McLeaming presented Betty Rouse to be enrolled as a guide. The Regent presented each of the Guides with a hat crest as a gift from I. O. D. E. This was followed by Flying Up Ceremony when 2 Brownies, Irma Campbell and Agnes Chambers, who have reached the Brownie Age limit (11 yrs.) left the pack and joined the troop. Brown Owl Gray pinned on their wings, the Brownies gave their Grand Howl, and Patrol Leader Lorraine Gravers presented them to Captain Baker. Mrs. Potts, Commissioner for this District, gave a short address on the 10 points of Girl Guide Law. Barbara Prince and Shirley Stapley sang a duet, "Alone Blue Gown", and Sybil McLeaming rendered a Guitar solo. This was followed by a short address by the Regent, Rosa Spry. She explained why the I. O. D. E. were sponsoring the Guides and Brownies and just what this sponsoring consisted of. A number of the Brownies did a dance, "How Do you do my partner?", and the whole pack sang 2 songs, "There'll Always be an England," and "Twenty Frogs Went to School." Another group of Brownies did a dance—"The Grand Old Duke of York."

A group of Guides staged a play—"Poor Excuses", with Mary Agnes Fox, Beverly Prince, Lorna MacConnell, Arline Tummon, Eleanor Wells, Margaret McIntosh, Lorraine Gravers, Shirley Scott, Marilyn Eggleton, Helen Stinson, Doreen Fox and Shirley Stapley taking part. This was followed by Barbara Prince, Shirley Stapley, Shirley Scott and Mary Agnes Fox, singing "Brahms Lullaby." The programme closed with singing of Guide Taps. The evening ended with the I.O.D.E. serving a lunch to their guests. Mrs. L. Harding on behalf of the mothers moved a vote of thanks to the local chapter.

waters edge of the Adriatic Sea:—"Well I spent Christmas day in a barn which we were very glad to get in as it was raining. That morning I received a parcel from my wife and Christmas night we found a house with a stove in it and we got a kind of a dinner. We had canned turkey, boiled potatoes, cabbage, date pudding, with melted chocolate bars for sauce, tea and cake. When we finished eating we went back to the barn to sleep. We could hear the boys at the front still fighting to take the town which was about three miles away. The other night I was writing to my brother in India and Jerry started to shell the town where we were staying. BIRTHS

COOMBES — At River Valley, on Saturday, February 12th, 1944, to Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Coombes, a son, Roger Reginald.

ST. PAUL'S W.M.S.

The February meeting of St. Paul's W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. Harold Wells with a good attendance. In the absence of the president, Mrs. H. David, occupied the chair, and opened the meeting with singing of hymn and prayer, and presided over the business period. It was decided that if at all possible the society would have Miss Mable Clazie, who recently returned from internment in Japan, as guest speaker for the Easter meeting. The various secretaries gave their reports on the month's work. Two birthday calls on ladies over 80 years old were reported, and three more are recorded for this month. Mrs. W. C. Pitman read an article from the Missionary Monthly — a tribute to Miss V. Burt — Mrs. J. J. Wilson reported for the Peace Secretary, and the treasurer's report showed $23.16 on hand. The Roll Call showed twenty-six members present.

After singing the Theme Hymn, Mrs. E. G. Bailey took charge of the worship service and programme. Mrs. Harold West read the Scripture passages and Miss Mae Currie sang a solo, based on the theme, "Christian Stewardship of Time." A short acceptance service was then held, when the members pledged themselves to accept the 1944 allocation of $400.00. A well prepared paper centred around Stewardship was read by Mrs. Nora Wescott. This paper was prepared by Mrs. H. C. Martin. Mrs. Townsend, president of Mt. Pleasant W.M.S. gave generously of her talent in singing two solos in keeping with the theme of Stewardship. These were much enjoyed by the members. The final number on the programme was a paper on "Making time and taking time", given by Mrs. R. A. Patterson. A Hymn and repeating of Mizpah Benediction closed the meeting. The hostess was thanked by Mrs. J. J. Wilson.

On a recent Sabbath, when Sonny, age 4, reached home, his mother inquired: "And how was Sunday school this morning, dear?" "Not so good," he said, and looked very sober. "Daniel's in the lions' den again."

ST. PAUL'S MISSION BAND

The Roll Call showed an attendance of 10 members and 1 visitor. Three new members joined. The minutes were read by the secretary, Roberta Good. The treasurer's report was given by Ronald Williams.

An interesting story, "Sonora Florida's Task", from the study book was told by Mrs. H. Wells. Pasty Ann Ayhart gave a Valentine reading.

The worship service was conducted by Mrs. E. Luery. All joined in the Lord's prayer, followed by a devotional story and prayer by the leader. Hymn 251, "Far Round The World", was sung. The offering was taken by Alan Wells.

Mrs. E. Luery entertained the children with a piano solo. A Bible story, "The man who remembered to say thank you", was read by Eleanor Wells. A short business period was led by Mrs. H. Wells.

All joined in the Mizpah Benediction.

The President, Mrs. Anderson, directed the devotional period and business portion, with the opening hymn being, "Rescue the Perishing, Care for the Dying." The daily prayer was given in unison. Mrs. Tompkins read the 145 psalm. Mrs. Tompkins was welcomed by the members on being home again and in much better health.

Mrs. Hoard gave the "Glad Tidings" Prayer, which was composed and sent to this monthly magazine by Mrs. H. Rollins.

Plans were made for the world day of prayer to be held in St. Andrew's Church, on February 25th. The following programme was directed by Miss Gena Spry: Hymn, "Jesus Shall Reign Where'er the Sun"; Mrs. L. Rodgers gave a paper on a little lesson in arithmetic, "Add, Subtract, Multiply and Divide, yea, Divide, 'Tis the Christian Way."

AGRICULTURE CAN USE MILITARY MECHANICS IN POST WAR PERIOD

After the war thousands of men now in the armed forces of Canada, who have had exceptional military mechanical training, will be demobilized. How many of these men can, by special vocational training in agricultural mechanization, be readily adapted to an agricultural works improvement program, merits immediate special attention, Dr. E. S. Archibald, Director, Dominion Experimental Farms, told the delegates who attended the Annual Convention of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, recently held in Quebec city.

"These highly trained mechanics with skill and courage", he said, "may be adapted to works programs fundamental to a better agriculture, for example in land drainage schemes which entail machinery such as ditching machines, drag lines, bulldozers, carry-all scrapers, various types of caterpillar tractors, and many other types of machinery which have not been adapted to agricultural problems, but which can be economically used in a large-scale development program. This same training with the same types of machinery applies to flood control measures, soil conservation and other problems which require."

quire skilled engineers, soils experts, and trained mechanics in numbers far beyond any previous conception.

"There is still another aspect of mechanical training as applied to agriculture which may be embodied in such national agricultural improvement works programs, including rural artisans' services such as carpenters, blacksmiths, machinery repair men, plumbers, electricians, and the like. That these have almost disappeared from rural communities has without doubt, been due to the fact that the farmer has been in no position to carry on such works improvements. If a better agriculture is to be hoped for, which means improvement in our land, buildings, homes and community centres, and our rural educational institutions, these artisans may well be established as part of our rural structure to the advantage of the nations as a whole."

Referring to the need for advanced agricultural college training in the post-war years, Dr. Archibald said the need will be really great for high-class graduate men in industry, based on agricultural products, more practical farming, more rural education in schools and high schools, and in many expanded phases of government activities in post-war programs. These men will include those requiring the highest type of training in the sciences pertaining to agriculture, including many intricate phases of research on which the future agriculture of Canada is so dependent. The agricultural colleges are not ready for such a huge task, and their need for these graduate students in release of buildings, more buildings, and more highly trained staff is obvious.

$55,000 FIELD SERVICE PROGRAM FOR HOLSTEIN BREEDERS

A total of $55,000 will be spent by the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada in 1944 for its Field Service program. The allocation of this record amount was due to the belief of the Directors that an enlarged program would make a very valuable contribution to the efforts of Canadian dairymen to meet the high production goals for 1944. With membership at a new high of 8,500, an extension of the field service program was necessary so that the Association's fieldmen would be in a position to give expert advice on feeding, breeding, and herd management to the owners of these newly-established herds.

'Combines' Score 8-2 Win Over Trenton In First of Finals

Close To A Thousand Fans Jam Their Way Into Local Arena To See Good Game

Outskating and outchecking their opponents for the entire sixty minutes of play, Stirling-Marmora "Combines" scored a convincing win over Trenton Juniors in the first game of a best-of-three series for the Junior "B" group title at the Stirling Arena on Monday night.

The largest crowd in years jammed the Stirling rink when 970 passed through the gates to watch the home-teams lead from the barrier to the wire, the period scores being 1-0, 2-0 and 8-2.

The "Combines" took the lead after the first four minutes of play, when Bert Bastedo rattled the twine behind Harvey after taking a pass from Brother Doug, and were never headed. Ray Goodchild made it 2-0 on a pass from Cousins, near the middle of the second period. Trenton notched their first goal early in the third stanza only to have the "Combines" come back with two in a row before Lamorre got their second and last tally. Then the Combines scored four in succession without a reply.

For the locals Goodchild was the offensive star with three goals, and was ably assisted by his line mate Cousins, who had one goal and three assists. B. Bastedo got two goals and Patterson one. Utman spearheaded the defence and was ably assisted by McIntosh, Fife and Whitehead. McIntosh, in the nets, played one of his best games, turning aside many shots that were labelled.

For the visitors, who were minus Hamilton, their scoring ace, Lamorre and Maxwell looked the best of the forwards, with Stojan playing a bang-up game on defence.

The line-ups:

Trenton—Goal, Harvey; defence, Stojan and Howe; centre, R. Lamorre; wings, Maxwell and Scott; subs, Taylor, B. LaMorre, Campbell, Bangay and Smith.

Stirling-Marmora "Combines"—Goal, McIntosh; defence, McIntosh and Utman; centre, B. Bastedo; wings, Patterson and D. Bastedo; subs, Cousins, Trumble, Goodchild, Fife and Whitehead.

Referees—Bowen, Trenton and Shannon, of Marmora.

Local Boy Writes From England

Following is a letter received by Mr. Russell Stapley, of Madoc Junction from his son, Pte. Ralph Stapley, who is stationed in England.

Somewhere in England

January 23, 1944

Hello Dad:

I received your air-mail a few days ago, (posted Jan 8th) and as we were out on a scheme I couldn't get answering it until now. We had a fairly easy time this week, slept outside three nights, it rained two of those and was rather miserable, but the third night was perfect. In fact, I had to take off my sweater in the night as it was too warm. Oh no, I didn't have all my clothes on as you would imagine, just my heavy drawers and summer shirt. That night we camped right near two hay-stacks so we pulled the hay out from under the bottom and slept half under the stacks. I also had prepared for rain, took two poles and stuck them in the hay and stretched my ground sheet over them which was likely why I was so warm, it being just like a tent. The one night it rained we were camped on a side hill with a few spruce trees around, but still they would not keep the rain off and we got good and wet. We were in a good place for hunting and some of the lads got a few pheasants and a rabbit or two. Stacey was the cook and he did a real good job of cooking them. I am rather unlucky where we go out like that, I have no rifle so I can't do any hunting. They have me bren-gunning these days, a much better weapon, only a little harder to keep clean and heavier. The people are doing their threshing now so I found out, it seems the season is from now to April. The last day we were out we passed a threshing machine in operation, so I went in for half an hour, during that time they threshed two bags of wheat. Terribly slow going but does a fine job. The engine run pretty slow, barely making centre, which caused it to rock back and forth in the belt. Firing on coal, engineer tended grain bagging, which is right on front of machine, put sheaves in hopper and big spool with spikes hawks it into cylinder where it makes the very same noise as yours, very nice to hear it again,—also the engine puffing. There is no blower, the straw just drops onto a stacker which runs it up the straw stack. There were five men and two women running the show, the feeder was on his knees, feeding by hand and cutting the bands with a sort of hooked knife. The woman were tending the straw. The women were tending the straw. That was about all I saw around the mill, it was rather good to hear the old familiar sounds.

The weather here is same as usual, high winds lately, and it is ever dark at night! Wow! I sit around the hut, play a game or two of cribbage, write, sew and darn in my spare time. Had a little action night before last, a few enemy planes over, and our ack-ack gave a fine reception for them, lots of tracer and search lights going, eight downed over the country so the paper said. Well be careful of yourself, don't work too hard.

Love to all, Ralph

Pancake Tea Successful

With the tables heavily laden with good things to eat, St. John's Parish Hall welcomed the residents of Stirling and community to the annual pancake supper, arranged by the Ladies' Guild of the church. Every detail was well arranged and with a minimum of confusion the guests were served with as many pancakes as they could eat, with meat, pickles, salads, pie, etc., to complete an exceptionally fine meal. Close to two hundred people sat down to the repast and when some of the guests told of eating over a dozen pancakes, one can realize the arduous task of the ladies. From 6.30 to 8 p.m. the ladies were kept busy attending to the wants of hungry people, and that their efforts were successful is attested by the many fine compliments heard on the excellence of the viands and the cuisine.

Injured In Collision

Roy Williams, 19, of Seymour township, was seriously injured in an accident on the Stirling road one half mile south of Campbellford, early Saturday afternoon.

Williams was driving south in a car owned by his father, Rae Williams of Hoards, when he broke over a hill to collide with a truck, police said was driven by Victor Irwin, who was returning from Hoards with a load of grain. The two vehicles sideswiped, with the rack of the truck catching the car which veered into the embankment and travelled an estimated hundred feet following the impact. Neither Irwin nor his passenger, Donald Sharp of Hoards, was injured, and the damage to the truck was estimated at between $50 and $75. Williams was removed from his car, which was a total wreck, in an unconscious condition and taken to Belleville hospital. Provincial Constable J. McKenzie of Campbellford investigated.

Sutherland-Mummary Nuptials

The Anglican Church of St. Timothy, Toronto, was the setting for a pretty wedding on Saturday, February 19th, 1944, when Mr. H. H. Marsh officiated at the marriage of Miss Ruth Marguerite Mummary, younger daughter of Mrs. E. E. Mummary, and the late Mr. Frank Mummary to Mr. William Alexander Sutherland, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Sutherland, Stirling, Ontario.

Given in marriage by Mr. W. D. Grierson, the bride was lovely in a period gown of white chenille taffeta with long fitted bodice scalloped onto a full skirt. The sweetheart necktie and hem-edge were trimmed with pulled taffeta rucking.

Her finger-tip veil was caught to a wing style Juliette cap of the same material as her dress. Long white velvet streamers fell from the back of the cape to the floor. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and freesia.

Miss Helen Mummary was her sister's bridesmaid, gowned in powder blue chenille taffeta, similar in style to that of the bride. Her headdress of the same material as her dress was a duplicate of the bride's and was trimmed with red velvet ribbon to match her arm cascade of American Beauty roses.

The groomsmen were Mr. A. J. McTaggart; the ushers were Mr. W. Mirreles and Mr. H. A. Graham, all of Toronto.

During the signing of the register Miss Margaret McInnes sang "Because."

A reception for 65 guests was held at the bride's home, 149 Deloraine Ave., tastefully decorated with varnished snapdragon, as was the church altar. The bride's mother received wearing a dress of heaven blue crepe, with matching hat and corsage of red roses. The groom's mother, also receiving, was in a black and gold dress, with black accessories and corsage of Tallman roses.

For the wedding trip to Montreal, the bride chose a pink wool suit, camel-hair fleece coat and black accessories.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland will make their home in Stirling, Ontario.

The bride is a graduate of MacDonald Hall, Guelph, and Acadia College, N.S. The groom is an O.A.C. graduate.

CANADIAN RED CROSS URGENTLY NEEDS $10,000,000

The Canadian Red Cross National appeal for $10,000,000 opens on February 28th, when the people of Canada will be asked to contribute just as much as they possibly can to make this objective a certainty.

Coming into the fifth year of a wide-spread war, with more Allied countries desperately in need of supplies and comforts of all kinds, the Canadian Red Cross is stepping up production in every department to meet requisitions as they come in.

This year there are more prisoners of war. $5,500,000 must be spent on food parcels alone, with an additional $1,000,000 for parcels for Allied Red Cross Societies.

Dried blood serum is growing in importance with the advance of our armed forces, and $750,000 will be required to keep this vital service functioning at top speed, as it must.

Hospital supplies and comforts for the Forces require $3,000,000.

With a growing feeling that the war may be coming to a close, there is an even greater need for concentration on Red Cross supplies. The peoples of the occupied countries have been stripped of their possessions. They have literally nothing. With the ending of hostilities, Canadian Red Cross will be faced with an extension of her active war services.

Peacetime commitments have been kept up, with regard to nursing and first aid outposts, hospitals and public health. To meet any eventuality, Canadian Red Cross must stand prepared.

There has never been a time in the history of Canadian Red Cross when there was a greater need for the all-out support from loyal Canadians. Last year the objective was reached. ... and passed.

This year the need is greater. Canadian Red Cross is the living link between Canadians at home and kin overseas. Keep mercy on the march!

THE FAMILY PAPER

While the average circulation of the weekly is much less than that of daily papers, this numerical advantage of the dailies is to a very large degree offset by factors based on the fact that the weekly newspaper is to a great extent a family newspaper, while the daily paper is to a far greater extent an individual reader's paper, says the Orangeville Banner.

Then, too, the weekly paper is not discarded on the day it is received, but remains in the home until the following week's edition appears. And the weekly is read far more thoroughly because a large proportion of its news pertains to the people personally known to the readers. The editors of the weeklies are also personally known to a much larger percentage of their readers than are the editors of the dailies.

The market which the small town publisher touches is indeed great compared to the dailies as the greater percentage of business done in this country is done in the rural communities. There is no question about the straight thinking of the rural people of Canada when the facts regarding such matters as the operation of national government are placed before them. When they are in possession of the facts upon any public issue, presented without partisan bias, they think right and vote right.

FAMILY TABLE TALK

In the present national drive for the eradication of venereal disease, there has been frequent emphasis on the responsibility of parents to instruct and guide young people and inculcate in them good moral attitudes.

The importance of the home, where character is moulded, where attitudes are taught and where acceptable standards are developed, is fundamental to any effort to reduce delinquency and prevent its physical results.

Character training and development of good social standards is not so much a matter for special lectures as exposing a child in day-to-day living to good example and expression of the parents' conception of sound values.

Much of the teaching can and should be done indirectly, little by little, and for this one of the best opportunities is offered by the family gathering at the dinner table, where the conversation provides a democratic forum, for the exchange of ideas.

Table conversation serves as an evaluating conference, especially on the needs, experiences and interests of the family members. It fosters an agreement on beliefs, and clarifies the application of beliefs. The inculcation of viewpoint comes more out of the informal chatter than out of formal admonition.

Almost everyone will have been present at staged conversations—at which mother—for instance, relates what she heard about the dangerous practice of some children who ride on the back of bakers' wagons. Then there are the conversations between the parents, with the children as the audience, in which the father, perhaps, expresses his disapproval of the conduct of unnamed persons.

Subtle, indirect teaching of children, by the exposure method, from day to day, will do more to develop a sound appreciation of values and standards of conduct than lecturing—which children do not enjoy any more than do adults. But parents should remember that children learn just as readily the attitudes and habits of parents when the latter are not conscious of them.

The father who unthinkingly condones loose conduct or an ordinarily unacceptable social attitude may quickly undo the teaching of years. It is in their day-to-day living with their children that parents have the greatest responsibility.

The season for the "splasher" is here again and pedestrians are liable to have their clothing spattered by motorists driving through puddles of water on the streets at sufficient speed to throw the water over the sidewalks. From now until the spring break-up motorists should remember that pedestrians have certain rights and exercise care in their driving.

Now is the time for farmers to take stock of their Spring seed requirements. Those who haven't seed of their own should secure what they require as soon as possible and thus avoid disappointment later on. Farmers who have their own supply would also be well advised to have it properly cleaned and graded before the Spring rush.

More and more waste paper is required. While an appreciable volume is moving towards the mills, the situation is still desperate. Canada must have more paper containers for medical kits, emergency rations, shells, blood plasma, and hundreds of other naval, army and Air Force uses. Save your old papers and take them to the I.O.D.E. store room, (the old post office), on Front St., or notify any member and they will be called for as soon as possible.

Trenton town councillors have voted themselves pay and now are in line with all the townships and the majority of villages and towns throughout the province. The Courier-Advocate expresses the hope that since "councilloring" in Trenton is going to cost the ratepayers some money they will drop around once in a while to see what's going on. It may have some effect, but in our opinion it will take more than payment of councillors to overcome the apathy towards municipal affairs that prevails in almost every municipality.

This is "Baden-Powell Scout Week." Its purpose is to advance the principles and work of this admirable movement. All the natural love of boys for the outdoors, all their longing for good comradeship, all their healthy desire for play and adventure, finds most complete expression in the Boy Scout organization. But even more important than these is the inculcation of all those qualities of heart and mind and body which make for good citizenship. A Boy Scout is self-reliant. He is loyal. He learns to be useful and above all he learns to serve others by helping them.

Warning has been given by J. P. Bickell, registrar of motor vehicles for Ontario that the 400,000 odd motorists who have not yet taken out their 1944-45 license stickers have but a brief time in which to comply with the regulations. And still the residents of Stirling and surrounding community must spend time and gasoline to go to Belleville or Trenton to buy their licenses. A petition of well over 500 names asking that an issuer of motor licenses be appointed in Stirling was presented to the Minister of Highways some months ago but no action was taken. Apparently the Government chooses to forget about the motorists in this neck of the woods — well it might be a good idea if the motorists in turn forgot the Government when the next election comes around.

What Others Say

IT IS DIFFERENT

It is claimed that after the war it will be as safe to fly across the Atlantic as it is to cross the street. What we need, however, is the assurance that it will be as safe to cross the street as it is to fly the Atlantic.—Campbellford Herald.

NOTHING TO IT!

The Ottawa Journal is trying to find out if running a weekly newspaper is a very difficult matter, and suggests that it is not. The Journal is correct. Anybody can run a weekly newspaper better than the men who are putting them out. There's really nothing to it.—Trenton Courier-Advocate.

CANADA'S PRIDE AND JOY

Death can never be so routine as to have no meaning, not when it is the young and the finest who are dying. It is Canada's "pride and joy" which is flying into death every night, and we must get down to a fundamental evaluation of the cost. Those are the lives on which Canada would build her future. Each one that is lost is something gone from that future, a little world that will never be built.

We can't go back to the simple, human values without reassessing our own efforts. Do we measure the raid on Berlin as another step closer to victory, and do a little more to hasten the next step so that some of those lives can be saved? Or do we think of it simply as a step further from danger, and scheme how best to capitalize the gain? Are we preserving at home the things they are defending?—Toronto Globe and Mail.

A COUNTRY EDITOR'S RETORT

We've heard from a country editor in reply to a piece of ours a few days back in which we dared suggest that the nearest thing to bliss on this earth was to be editor of a country weekly. Rather than our own vast responsibilities of telling generals and prime ministers how to run the war and the world we allowed that we'd much prefer to run a weekly, even if it meant wrapping the papers ourselves.

Well—"Brother, you're all wet," is the retort we get from an Ontario gentleman who writes on his office stationery and signs his name, but modestly scribbles across the whole piece: "This is a personal letter and not for publication."

He says we couldn't set a stick of type, couldn't keep a ledger, couldn't fix a broken press. All we editors of city papers have to do, he says, is let George do it.

Actually the ordinary country editor in about nine-tenths of the cases is a printer first and editor last. He's compositor, pressman, binder, wrapper, writer, etc., etc. He has to dig up his copy, write it, post his books, fraternize with his customers, do the buying, do the paying, worry about the sheriff and try to find time to be home occasionally and get acquainted with his wife and family.

"No, chum, it's not as easy as just wrapping paper. There's just one solace. Most editors of country papers are editor-owners and can come down to the office in the morning, without fear of the boss firing them when they've been wrong dry like an orange of further usefulness to the firm."

"But don't try running a country paper without being a printer first and not being afraid of getting your hands dirty and a smudge of ink on your nose."

Whew! This fellow makes out quite a case. We're not so handy at fixing presses even if we do think we could handle the sheriff as well as the next man. All right, we won't buy that weekly this month. But we still have a hunch we're being kidded and the lamplight study in a small country town is not yet removed from our reveries.—Ottawa Journal.

Precedents of Adjournment

As a result of the widespread interest in the report of a future gathering in London of the Prime Ministers of the British Commonwealth of Nations and in view of the reply given in Parliament to a question if the House of Commons would adjourn during that meeting whereby Premier King had indicated in his initial answer that he was unable to offer a definite reply at the moment, it must be pointed out that this had been done previously, such as in 1911 when Parliament had adjourned on the occasion of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier's visit overseas to the Imperial Conference at that time.

Circulation of Notes

The Bank of Canada has reported that there had been a continuation in 1943 of the increase of the circulation of notes in this country in tune with this same tendency throughout the war, though this rise in 1943 was not as great as in 1942. This rise was $186,068,000 in 1943, but it was $199,888,000 in 1942, with the note circulation in 1943 during the final weekly report having been $874,912,000 and $692,844,000 on the same date in 1942 as against $485,956,000 at the same time in 1941.

NEWS FOR THE BUSY FARMER

AN EXCITING RACE

Every year on every farm there is an exciting race—a race between weeds and crops. The farmer should bet on crops and do everything possible to handicap weeds, advises Geo. Knowles, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

Every crop has within itself some power to compete with weeds. It is the farmer's duty to develop that competitive power to the maximum. Every weed, virile as it may seem, can be handicapped to some extent. How to do this should be common knowledge.

Normally, wheat, oats and barley are considered poor competitors with weeds, but if they are seeded about fifty per cent heavier than usual and fertilizer is applied in the drill with gain they become effective smother crops.

Growing grain crops presents an excellent opportunity for handicapping annual weeds. The seedlings of annuals are easily killed. Harrowing with a light harrow or finger weeder just as the seedlings emerge kills millions of these tiny plants and prevents them from maturing more seed to infest the soil.

Most farmers recognize buckwheat as a smother crop, but it needs help. Buckwheat is often called upon to tackle the killing of a vigorous stand of couch grass. This is too much to expect of any crop.

Land intended for buckwheat should be ploughed in the preceding fall. Then after the rush of spring seeding is over there is usually time to cultivate this fall ploughed area several times. When the weather is favorable it is a good idea to take up as many as possible of the couch roots and either haul them off or burn them. After this kind of treatment, buckwheat can usually be depended upon to finish the couch grass.

The value of alfalfa as a means of smothering thistles and a number of other perennial weeds, but not couch, is well known to most alfalfa growers.

Dry skim-milk is used in the manufacture of ice cream, chocolate bars, candies, bread, process cheese, prepared meats, macaroni, and other food products for human consumption, as well as in the preparation of feeds for animals and poultry.

SPRING OFFENSIVE ON THE FARM FRONT

Food is the most important and all-pervading munitions of war. Without food, war would be no more, and human life itself would become extinct. The accumulation of food stores before any offensive or other operation of war is the first imperative obligation of the successful military commander. He knows that, however brilliant his strategy may be, it is bound to fail without the bodily sustenance of his men through the orderly delivery of food at the right place and at the right time. Every detail of supply and transportation must be thought out in advance and co-ordinated.

If the assembling of food entails such a responsibility on the military commander, what about the heavy load on the shoulders of the country's first great munitioneer—the farmer who makes the assembly of food possible? In peace or war, year by year, the farmer undertakes a great Spring offensive. Everything has to be planned in detail. As in the armed forces, nothing in the preparation for success on the farm may be left to chance.

A year before each spring offensive some seed has to be sown. The growing of good seed is an art in itself and before the best seed has been selected, it has been checked and re-checked. When at last, the seed has been chosen, it has to be cleaned to clear it of weed seeds and reject inferior kernels. It has then to be tested for germination and purity. The seed is the ammunition; the farm machinery the field guns and heavy ordnance. The preparation of the soil parallels the choosing of the battleground on which victory may be best assured, but before the ammunition is used, it has been made certain that the "field guns" which sow seeds instead of shrapnel are in the highest working order. After the first wave of the offensive has passed, the heavy ordnance, in the shape of harvesters and threshers, all in first-class order, have been readied for the final push in the harvest. All is not plain sailing. There is fair weather and foul. There are hazards and heartbreaks, but the farmer carries on. Food just does not happen. Its successful growing is the triumph of the farmer.

THREE HASTINGS HOLSTEINS ON HONOR LIST

Three Hastings County Holsteins are prominently mentioned in the Annual Honor List just issued by the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada, in which recognition is given to the outstanding producers of the past year. Two are owned by James L. Broad, Belleville, and one by the Estate of Donald Longwell, Foxboro. In the mature class of the 305-day division, Princess Sylvia Segis Inka, a member of Mr. Broad's herd, stood third for both milk and butterfat with her production of 780 lbs. butterfat from 20,759 lbs. milk. Her stablemate, Ethel Cornucopia Posch, stood second for milk in the junior two-year-old class of the yearly division with 18,050 lbs. milk containing 542 lbs. butterfat. The Longwell heifer, Molly Woodcrest Posch, was second for milk in the senior two-year-old class of the 305-day division with 15,419 lbs. milk and 501 lbs. butterfat. All three records were made on twice-a-day milking.

To gain a place on the Honor List an animal must have completed a Record of Performance test during 1943 that rated among the top five made in any part of the Dominion in its class for either milk or butterfat.

CHANGE IN HOURS OF NIGHT RATES

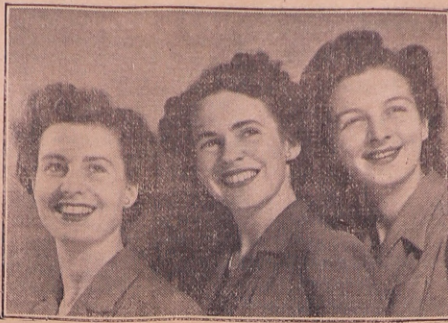

The announcement that from March 1, night rates on long distance calls will begin at 6 p.m. instead of 7 as heretofore, will be of special interest to boys and girls telephoning home from camps and barracks all over the country. The change will be effective also on all lines of the Trans-Canada Telephone System.

Two main results are expected from this change—the added convenience of the longer night rate period, and lessened congestion on war-busy lines which, because of material shortages, cannot be extended.

Further, of course, there will be an obvious saving to users through the one-hour's lengthening of the night rate period.

If you want to get dizzy, here are some figures of Canada's bank account. They show that for the fiscal year 1944-55 our non-war appropriations at over $702 millions are up 51 millions over the previous year; that war appropriations are down $240 millions from the estimated $3,650 millions. Our national income for 1943, however, hopped up 17.3 per cent to $8,800,000,000. More movement upwards: exercise, customs and income tax collected federally in January, 1944 and 253 millions, an increase of 63 millions over the month, a year before that. An added touch: the cash income of the Canadian farmer was sure in 1943—to a new high—estimated returns from sale of farm products being $1,397,000,000, a total of $282 millions over 1942. All provinces shared in the increase.

COLUMN OF THREE'S

This is the thirty-third in the series of bi-monthly news letters prepared by the Public Relations Division of Military District No. 3.

Field Marshal Sir John Dill, K.C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., Senior British Officer on the combined Chiefs of Staff, at Washington, D.C., recently paid a short visit to the historic grey stone buildings which house the world-famous Royal Military College, Kingston.

Being Prime Minister Churchill's representative in Washington, Sir John's visit to R.M.C. was one of significant importance. This outstanding militarist, who has been called "Our best general since Marlborough," has been reported by the Germans as the only British General worthy of their steel.

While at R.M.C., Sir John spoke to members of the Canadian War Staff Course, among whom were many of officers wearing the familiar overseas patches, prominent among which were those of the British 1st and 8th Armies. He reminded them that he last visited R.M.C. in 1930, and that Canada felt like home to him because of his associations with many Canadian soldiers in the last war and the present campaign.

Field Marshal Dill is an Irishman from the Protestant stronghold of Belfast in Ulster, and his family can trace its ancestry back to a Dutch soldier who followed William of Orange. He is tall, slim and fair-haired. His eyes are keen with little wrinkles at the corner, showing a great deal of shrewdness and sense of humor. He wears a spruce mustache above a firm determined mouth which twists slightly at the corners.

Soldiering for Sir John began during the Boer War. He was promoted from a subaltern to the rank of Capt. in 1911. During the First World War, he went into France as a Brigade Major serving on the General Staff, and worked closely with the Canadian Corps.

In 1915 he was awarded the D.S.O., and in 1918 was presented with the C.M.G., Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George. During the same year, he was awarded the French and Belgium Croix de Guerre. At the close of the 1914-18 conflict he was a Brigadier, a rank he relinquished in 1920 upon appointment as instructor at the Imperial Defence College, England. He then became a colonel. In 1929 he went to India as a Brigadier on the General Staff and in 1930 was promoted to Major General.

It was in 1931 that he was given the official position of commandant of the Staff College at Camberley, Eng. Two years later he was transferred to the War Office as director of Military Intelligence.

Sir John in 1935 attended German manoeuvres in East Prussia, and during the same year had an opportunity of surveying the Maginot Line. In 1935 he was promoted to lieutenant-general and sent to suppress the Palestine-Arab revolts, and in 1937 returned to England to take complete charge of Britain's huge infantry base at Aldershot, and was raised to the rank of general. It was in this year that he was knighted, K.C.B.

A highlight of the Field Marshall's visit to R.M.C. was when he signed the guest book in General Hertzberg's office. While he was inscribing his name, he called two of his old friends, Brigadier Armstrong and General Hertzberg, and showed them the signature he had written in the book during his last visit in 1930.

recent discussion held at Kildare Barracks, Ottawa.

The subject of a teacher's salary in the different provinces was discussed with attention to both rural and urban problems. General opinion favoured Dominion control of the situation and the regular grading of teachers' salaries with consideration for their cultural education, experience, native ability and the cost of living. The need for all teachers to associate themselves with a Teachers' Federation was strongly maintained.

Discussion groups are held weekly at Kildare Barracks in conjunction with the Tuesday night broadcast over C.B.C., "Of Things Come."

Two American music hall artists sought employment in one of London's leading theatres.

The manager inquired the length of their act.

The pair hadn't had an act for a month of Sundays, and didn't know just what to say, but being resourceful, replied, "Twenty-five minutes."

"Twenty-five minutes," exclaimed the manager. "Why, my dear sirs, ours is a long bill. I cannot give you twenty-five minutes. I suggest that you go on for eight minutes."

The performers stared at him agast.

"Eight minutes," they screamed. "Why, we bow for seven minutes!"

Only the Red Cross meets this call for vital life saving food for Prisoners of War, parcels, medicines, comforts, blood serum and nursing that spell survival for so many. There is no one else to do the job.

That is why we cannot fail: why we ask you to open your hearts and purses, giving to the limit of your ability.

Pie Social
On Friday evening February 18th, the Young People's Union sponsored a very successful pie social when over forty dollars was taken in at the door. The proceeds will be used for the M. & M. Fund. Mt. Pleasant church hall was tastefully decorated with Valentines.

Rev. T. F. Townsend was Master of ceremonies and Mrs. Kenneth Weaver introduced the characters for a half-hour play, entitled "The Red Lamp" which was presented in two acts. The scenes took place in the living room of the Deering home in the New York suburbs.

The cast was as follows:
Elderly Spinster—Miss Muriel Welbourn; Her Nephew—Harold Deering—Mr. Eric Summers; Her Niece—Alice Deering, Miss Ketha Bush; Archie Clark—A young lawyer—Mr. F. Spencer; Bill Worth—Man of all Trades, Mr. Ralph Jeffs; Irish Maid—Miss Gladys Summers.

Act I presented a lot of worry over the Red Lamp which came from South America and was supposed to bring "Good Luck." The second act brought the Luck and everybody was well pleased after all the various mix-ups were straightened out.

Between acts, Mr. Robert Elliott, Bethel, presented an intricate piano solo; Miss Margaret Gray, Stirling, sang a vocal number.

Several members of the Young People's Union served sandwiches and various kinds of pie and all had a real feed as there was pie and more pie and everyone had all they could eat. This has been the first social event at Mt. Pleasant in a long time where food has been served so the younger fry enjoyed themselves.

OUR PRIVILEGE

Secure at home, we are not asked to fly
The flak-infested highways of the sky
Above a hostile land, and match our wits
With devils blond, in deadly Messerschmitts.

Not ours to sail upon the raging seas
Where U-boats strike and howling blizzards freeze;
Nor fight on beaches with the young and brave
Spill our life's blood . . . lie in a foreign grave.

No sacrifice in air, on land or sea
Is asked of us, that mankind may be free!
But ours the blessed privilege, ours the right
To buy the "tools" wherewith the valiant fight.

Before you blame your telephone...

CHECK THIS DISTANCE

Engineers designed the mouthpiece of your telephone to give best results at one-quarter of an inch from the lips. When your lips are farther away than this, your voice is transmitted less strongly . . . less clearly.

Failure to remember these simple facts accounts for the great majority of "trouble" reports.

Help avoid needless service check-ups, and at the same time let those you talk to hear you without strain. Just remember: Talk clearly, normally, directly into the telephone, with your lips just one-quarter of an inch from the mouthpiece.

On Active Service

Giving Wings to Words

Smoking while you talk may cause distorted reception. It also prevents your holding the mouthpiece directly in front of the lips.

If you need to reach across your desk, as you talk, continue to hold the telephone in correct position, close to the lips.

A wall set can't come to you; stand or sit so that your lips are directly in front of and close to the mouthpiece. Don't "talk across" it.

For clear, noise-free transmission, always keep your telephone upright—not at an angle or near the horizontal position.

"THEY MARCH BETTER ON TEA"

Commandos march better on tea than on water. This fact has been demonstrated by an official test recently carried out in Great Britain. A Canadian battalion was undergoing a 12-days course of battle training. The last six days were devoted mainly to marching, and during the period the foot-sloggers covered more than 250 miles. As an experiment, three out of four platoons were allowed to get all the water they wanted. The members of the fourth platoon were kept entirely off water and were served only with tea. The "water platoons" made good use of their water bottles, but the "tea platoon" was the only one to finish the course intact. Which only goes to show that there must be something in the soldier's traditional liking for "a cup of rosie lee."

The use of seed grain that has not been well cleaned is responsible for the introduction of many new weeds and for the increases of those already in the soil.

BETHEL WOMAN'S ASSOCIATION

About 30 took dinner together on Thursday, February 17th, at the home of Mrs. S. Elliott. Beginning in the morning the members worked on a Star Quilt for Mrs. Elliott. In mid-afternoon the new president, Mrs. Don Heath led in a devotional period, beginning with the song, "Let The Beauty of Jesus Be Sure In Me." Mrs. R. Welbourn brought the Bible Lesson from 12th chapter of Romans, and Mrs. T. F. Townsend led in prayer. The minutes were read and approved.

The March meeting is to be held at the home of the president, to be a joint meeting held in the evening. On motion by Mrs. S. Elliott and Mrs. K. Hagerman a fee of 15c to be made. Nine Crokinole Boards were promised for the evening. Mrs. D. Heath to be responsible for prize for the winners on March 16th.

Mrs. Townsend thanked the members for a lovely basket of fruit sent to her in January.

On motion by Mrs. C. Dracup and Mrs. S. Elliott, $10.00 was voted to the China-India Famine Victim's Fund. This to be paid on February 20th.

An apron donated by Mrs. W. Reid and made by Mrs. C. Dracup was left with Mrs. S. Elliott to be patched and sent on its way to each member.

As a second feature for raising funds the President gave each one a tiny apron to be returned with a coin in the pocket, at the March meeting.

The Pot-Luck Dinner brought in $8.95. Mrs. Elliott paid $1.00 for quilt a total of $9.95 for the day.

They must have been expecting excitement or something around the tag end of the Throne Speech because the galleries circling the House have been filled continuously. It looked to me as if the big majority of ringers were from out of town. Attendees have had to stop people more than usual from leaning their elbows on the gallery rail, which apparently is against traditional regulations. It also shows that folks there were not leaning back and snoozing. Parliament has really been steaming up for the start of the session and it looks as if it's going to be one of accomplishment. The Prime Minister seems to be pleased that it's "business before pleasure" because in one statement he urged members to broadcast to the nation that Parliament is really "doing something" instead of belittling its efforts in the eyes of the people.

Seen around the Capital: Centre of interest in the fine new Post Office here is the new-fangled Mail-O-Mat, a machine which saves you from headaches at the wicket trying to figure out how many twos and threes you want. All you do is stick the required amount for stamps in a slot in something which has all the ear marks of a gum-vending machine, turn a gadget and away goes your letter mailed and everything. It's the first of its kind in Canada, although manufactured in Stamford Connecticut. The Post Office Department is trying it out on the public here and it may be some day we'll have one in every post office so the post master will be able to go hunting and curling when he wants to. After I tried it once I wanted to write everyone in the country a letter just so I could mail it in the Mail-O-Mat.

If you ever come to Ottawa to see Parliament and all the big stuff in action, make it a point to be in the main corridor of the building just a few minutes before 3 p.m. to watch the Speaker's parade. It's one of the few wartime restricted manifestations of traditional ceremony still to be seen. On the dot, slowly up the corridor come three uniformed attendants, then the big glittering Mace, behind the dignified Speaker in his robes and a couple of the clerks trailing. The little procession winds its way to the House of Commons chamber. You'll have to uncover, to watch, or else.

Women are keeping the home fires burning, sure, but they're also playing a big part in the industrial picture. In December, 1940, one woman in each 186 in Canada was in industry. Last December (1943), the ration had gone to one in 24.

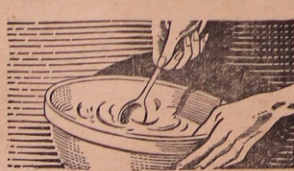

Out in the smaller places everyone seems to have enough coffee to satisfy, but the other day in a restaurant in Ottawa at 7.30 p.m. I was told by the waitress "No more coffee. We've used up our quota for the day." If you could see the crowds pouring out of offices at meal times you'd wonder how they ever had enough coffee till noon.

Come and get it: While Finance Minister Hsley said the government may consider taking off meat rationing, Agriculture Minister Gardiner pointed out stock surpluses were due to lack of shipping space at this time, so it appears that as the opportunity presents itself Britain is to get as much of the extra meat as it is possible to send to them. And the Prices Board announces a ten per cent increase of tomato juice will be on the shelves during February and March, more vitamins. A price ceiling, to parallel where possible that in the United States, will be on 43 kinds of imported fruits and vegetables, including asparagus, lettuce, parsley, cukes, celery, apricots, cantaloupes, cherries and tangerines.

Off repeated by authorities, again an urgent appeal is sent out to the highways and byways of Canada that Halifax is terribly overcrowded; that dependents, etc., of service personnel try to "stay put" where they are. Halifax population has skyrocketed from 65,000 to 135,000.

COOKERY METHODS OF TURNIP

Hello Homemakers! The truth about turnips has given prominence to this vegetable which keeps as well provided during the entire winter. There are two types of turnip—white and yellow (rutabaga). The white turnip is milder flavoured but not as high in food value as the yellow. When the yellow turnip is overcooked it turns dark, is watery and generally unpalatable.

As a Canadian product turnips provide an ample amount of Vitamin C when served raw—combining the fact that splinters of chilled raw turnip are delicious. They also contain valuable minerals, provided they are properly cooked, i.e., barely enough water to cover—and the drained-off juices are used in the soup pot. And they are an energy food to serve with meat, fish or eggs.

A few extra hints:

1. Combine grated turnip with diced celery, chopped lettuce, cubed apple and salad dressing.
2. Cut turnip into very small pieces to cook. Cook only until tender.
3. Cubed, cooked turnip, white sauce (made of part turnip liquid and milk) and cooked sausages make an appetizing dish.
4. When mashing turnips the method is to add 1-2 tsp. sugar, 1 tsp. flour, 1-4 cup top milk and mash thoroughly. Add a pinch of nutmeg for another variety.
5. Because of the pronounced flavour of yellow turnip we like to mash it and combine with an equal amount of mashed potato.

Scalloped Turnip with Cheese

1 yellow turnip, salt, pepper, flour, 1-2 cup grated old cheese, 1 cup milk, 1 cup bread crumbs. Pare and slice turnip very thin. Cut into quarters. Arrange slices in greased baking dish. Sprinkle each layer with salt, pepper, a little flour and grated cheese. Add milk to come up at least half of the depth of the dish. Top with buttered crumbs. Cover and bake in electric oven at 350 degrees for 1-1 1/2 hours. Just before serving remove cover to allow crumbs to brown.

Baked Turnip Puff

3 cups cooked, mashed turnip, 1 cup soft bread crumbs, 2 tps. sugar, salt, pepper, nutmeg, 2 eggs, beaten, 1-2 cup milk, 1 tps. butter. Combine turnip, bread crumbs. Add sugar, salt, pepper and nutmeg. Stir in eggs and milk and pour into greased baking dish. Dot with butter and bake in electric oven at 350 degrees for 25 minutes.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. A.H.S. suggests this recipe for Pumpkin Pie and stresses baking the pie-paste shell for 3 minutes before adding the filling.

Pumpkin Pie

2-3 cup brown sugar, 2 table-spoons butter, 1-4 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 tablespoon cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 1-4 cups cooked and strained or canned pumpkin, 2 egg yolks, 1 1-4 cups scalded milk, 2 egg whites. Add sugar, butter, spices and salt to the pumpkin. Add egg yolks slightly beaten. Add milk and mix thoroughly. Fold in stiffly beaten whites and pour filling into 9-inch pie plate lined with pastry pre-cooked 3 minutes. Bake in electric oven for 10 minutes. Reduce heat and bake for 40 minutes in oven of 325 degrees F.

Mrs. K. B. asks. Why does chocolate and old cheese harden in a refrigerator?

Answer: Chocolate and cheese harden in the electric refrigerator but they soften at room temperature because the fat does not drain off as it does when stored on the kitchen shelf. These products should be thoroughly wrapped in wax paper as the chocolate may turn grey and the aroma of cheese may penetrate other foods.

Mrs. J.M. asks: In what proportions do you substitute honey for molasses?

Answer: Less soda is required when substituting honey for ordinary molasses. About 1-4 teaspoon of soda is sufficient for one cup of honey.

TAX RATE INCREASED TWO MILLS IN NAPANEE

At the regular meeting of the Town Council Monday night the 1944 tax rate was struck at 51 mills, an increase of two mills over the previous year.

The increase is brought about due to the decision of the Council to create a reserve fund as recommended by the Department of Municipal Affairs. Treasurer M. P. Graham reported 93 percent of the 1943 taxes paid.

The Prices Board warns that basic period ceiling prices must apply on the retail sale of shelled peanuts.

"RACING DRIVER"

By ALEXANDER CAMPBELL

SEVENTH INSTALLMENT

They were still climbing steeply, sliding past rich gardens behind white walls, down which clusters of grapes hung, and curiously Moorish buildings with graceful frescoes and tall alabaster columns.

"The Arabian Nights!" said Florence.

They came at length to the upper station. Below them was the blue bay, a wide, glittering curve, in which the ship at anchor looked like a toy boat. The air was sparkling, like wine.

The small children who had pursued them crowded like flies round a honey-pot.

"Pennies!" they chanted indefatigably.

Frank put his hand in his pocket. "I have no more pennies," he informed them, a trifle grimly. "So be off."

The leader of the grimy little band instantly produced a large mass of coins—Frank's own copper largesse distributed en route.

"We give you change!" he announced promptly.

Florence shook with laughter.

"It's a racket!"

Then she grimaced. "Here's Geo. again!"

"George it was, a George who had raced up the mountainside determined not to lose them, bowing and scraping triumphantly beside his ancient and now overheated car.

A View so Marvellous

At that moment Dorothy Ellington was telling her father and Christine that she had decided not to go ashore after all. A headache, she pleaded, and went below. Her habitual calmness had deserted her. She was conscious of a strange empty feeling inside. Something had gone wrong.

Meanwhile Frank and Florence had resumed their pilgrimage in their sinister-looking guide's ancient car. They were enjoying themselves. Geo., surprisingly, had proved as good as his word. He had taken them to quaint, charming, out-of-the-way places that the ordinary tourist did not see—a little farm-house perched on a steep hillside overlooking the curve of the bay, where they drank excellent Madeira wine and listened to the brisk sunny melody of a band of guitarists and mandolinists and an old shrill set in a cool green valley.

"And now the view magnificent!" proclaimed George. His self-confidence had been fully restored. "Marvelous! Wonderful! Really okay!"

"Where?" asked Frank.

George waved a hand upward.

"We must climb yet further—to the summit. From there one can see the wide sweep of the blue sea, the gardens outspread like a gay carpet, the entire town!" He kissed his fingers in ecstasy.

Frank glanced dubiously at his watch.

"We haven't much time," he said.

"The ship sails early—and she won't wait for stray passengers! How long will it take, George?"

"Have no fear," said George reassuringly. "A few minutes only. Then, when you have feasted the eyes, we descend—swiftly!"

He made a swooping motion with his hand.

"Like a bird," he added.

"Not too swiftly, I hope," said Florence.

"What shall we do?" asked Frank.

"Well, if this view is really so marvellous. We won't be passing this way again for some time," said Florence wistfully.

"All right, George," said Frank.

"Take us to it. But hurry, please."

He had decided that George, despite his looks, was harmless after all. The guide threw in his gears. The ancient car lurched forward.

They ground up the mountainside, going very slowly.

"Can't you get her to go a bit faster?" asked Frank.

"It is the slope," explained George.

"Presently we come to the top. Then all is well."

But he seemed to be having difficulty. The car gradually lost speed. Also, George betrayed a sudden enthusiasm for other attractions which had apparently just come into his mind.

He stopped the car at the entrance to a narrow lane hung with vines.

"There is a tomb of great historical interest," he explained. "A most charming spot. It is but a little way along here. The lady would be vastly interested."

"We haven't time, George," said Frank.

"Come on, now none of this. Take us to this view you've been praising so extensively, and then we'll go home."

"The view is certainly excellent," admitted George. "But it occurs to me that if we detour a little, there is an even more magnificent spectacle to be witnessed—"

"No!" said Frank definitely. "Take us either case, hurry!"

George shrugged expansively. "As the gentleman wishes."

The car chugged on.

At last they actually came to a spot high on the mountain, overlooking the bay and the town. Frank had to admit that it lived up even to George's extravagant praises. The ground swooped down almost in a vertical line and they could practically have dropped pennies on to the roofs and quaint minarets of Funchal.

"No Petrol!"

For a few minutes they sat still and drank in the view. Then a thin wall came from below. From the ship a thin puff of smoke rose and drifted away against the blue mirror of sea and sky. Frank looked at his watch and exclaimed.

"Good lord, there goes the warning siren! We'll have to race back into town—and George's car is no speed bus!"

"Have no fear," grunted George.

"The lady and gentleman will catch the boat with ample time to spare. I promise it."

The engine had been allowed to stop. Lacking the luxury of a self-starter, George got out and swung the handle. Nothing happened.

"What the devil is it now?" asked Frank irritably.

"Patience!" said George smoothly.

He lifted the bonnet, and he appeared to be in no hurry. They watched him in a fever.

At last Frank jumped out and made for the front of the car. George, emerging from the bonnet, forestalling him.

"It is unnecessary to investigate, sir. The engine is absolutely top-hole. She will start now."

But she didn't.

"Oh, let me have a try!" said Frank.

He bent and swung lustily. Florence sat in the back seat and watched anxiously.

But still nothing happened. George's car could not boast even a cough.

Frank raised his back and passed a hand over his brow. He gazed helplessly down towards the town, far below.

"If I miss that boat I miss the race, and my chances of pulling off a win for Britain are bust!" he moaned.

"Good lord, old Harrison will never forgive me!"

"And what will Uncle Oliver say?" asked Florence.

"If I let him down—"

—Oh, Frank, we have simply got to do something!"

George, who had been standing by, now put a hand to his forehead.

"It is tragic!" he cried. "It is a calamity!"

They turned on him as one.

"What?"

"A moment," said George gloomily.

He stalked to the back of the car and unscrewed the cap of the petrol tank. He squinted fearfully into the cavity. Then he straightened himself.

"No petrol," he said briefly.

The Petrol Racket

"What!" Frank stared at their guide. Then he approached George in menacing fashion. "You idiot! You nitwit! You—oh, what's the use! You mean to say that you brought us all the way up here without bothering to inquire whether or not you had sufficient petrol?"

"The car, she leaks," said George simply. "It is a great loss to me. You must not be too hard. I also suffer."

"Is there anywhere near at hand that we can get petrol?" asked Frank, rather hopelessly.

George's face brightened.

"That is a thought! Yes, all is not yet lost. There is nearly a place where petrol may be obtained." His face clouded again. "But we are not friends, these fellows and I. It remains doubtful if they will supply the necessary spirit."

"They'll jolly well have to supply the necessary spirit," Frank said grimly. "I'll see to that."

George nodded. "Very well. It is down hill a little." He pointed. Then he paused. "If we were to turn the car, we might coast," he suggested brightly.

"Good idea!" said Frank.

By dint of much pushing they managed to turn the car. She slid slowly down the hill.

George turned her in at another of the narrow lanes which were frequent. The car glided under its own momentum for a short distance, then stopped.

"We must walk from here," said George. "Be assured, however. It is only a little way."

The lane narrowed still further, until they had to walk in single file.

Frank noticed that the vegetation was wild. The place was overgrown with weeds. Only the path showed that human beings had trod this way before them.

"Are you sure we're on the right path?" he asked. "This place seems pretty lonely."

"We are there," said George triumphantly.

They had come into a clearing, in the centre of which stood a roughly built shack. Two men lounged smoking in the doorway, almost as though they were expecting visitors.

George advanced towards them, pouring out a torrent of voluble Portuguese. The men listened, grinning.

Frank did not like the way they grinned. George appeared to be sharing the joke. He, too, was grinning.

Frank felt suddenly uneasy.

One of the men went into the hut. He emerged carrying a tin of petrol in either hand.

George turned to Frank.

"They have the spirit, as you can see. But there is a hitch."

"Go on," said Frank coldly.

"I have no money," George shrugged elaborately. "However, if the gentleman is anxious to reach the ship before he sails, undoubtedly he will not mind paying—"

"How much?" said Frank between his teeth.

George turned his eyes skywards.

"Two English pounds the gallon," he said tranquilly. "Since the car leaks, we shall need four gallons."

Florence gave a little cry.

"What! Why, that ridiculous! Don't pay it, Frank!"

"I was beginning to suspect it," said Carter gloomily. "This is their racket, Florence. I suppose we're not the first couple who have been caught out. George transports the mugs up here, and his friends charge the price for the petrol. Quite a neat scheme. There's nothing illegal about it, as far as I can see. George isn't charging the high price; his friends are. And I suppose they're at liberty to charge what they please. Of course the victim can always refuse. But being in a hurry to get back to the ship, for fear he's left behind, I imagine he generally pays up—as I'm going to do."

Law to the Rescue

He put his hand in his pocket. George and the two men watched with interest.

"Why hasn't someone reported it and put a stop to it?" demanded Florence furiously. "Surely the authorities could intervene—"

"That's the beauty of it," said Frank grimly. "It's timed so neatly. For by the time the victim gets back into town he has to run to get aboard the boat, without having minutes to spare to dally by the wayside to explain the scheme to a foreign policeman."

He began to count his money, and the conspirators watched him with greedy eyes.

At that moment, however, there was an interruption. A policeman, mounted on a pedal cycle, came swinging furiously along the path. He dismounted from his machine, glanced significantly at the money in Frank's hand, and advanced on the three men.

George and his companions shrank. Beneath the grime, their pallid countenances visibly paled.

The policeman shot a brief but lava-like stream of Portuguese at them. They wilted.

George attempted to reply. The policeman did not heed him. He turned to Frank and Florence.

"I am sorry," he said in careful slow English. "We have had a close watch kept on these men for some time. You were about to be the victims of a swindle. However, it is over. They will be placed in the dock to answer certain charges."

"Look here," said Frank, in a rush. "We've got simply no time to lay charges or anything like that. You seem to be aware of what has happened. Well, we're stranded here, and we've simply got to catch that boat."

The policeman shrugged. "I am sorry. You will not be detained for the trial, which may not come about for some time. But you must tell me what has happened, and also give me your names and English addresses."

Frank fretted with impatience, but the policeman, it was easy to see, was inflexible.

Carter poured out the story, making it as brief as possible, and the policeman took it down in a large book.

They were then required to sign it. Finally they gave their English addresses, and the addresses to which they were going in South Africa.

"And now," said Frank desperately. "For goodness sake help us to get into town! Can't we all drive back in his car?" He pointed to George.

The policeman produced a large watch. He consulted it, and frowned.

"This villain's machine," he pointed out, "could not cover the distance in the necessary time. It is old and dangerous. To drive fast in it over so steep a road would be courting disaster."

"Then we're sunk!" said Frank gloomily.

"The situation may yet be saved," said the policeman tranquilly. "There is another way down the slope which is swift but totally without hazard, though perhaps it looks a little dangerous."

"How?" demanded Frank and Florence in unison.

"The toboggan," said the policeman triumphantly.

"The toboggan!" they echoed.

He nodded. "Yes. The carinhão de costa. It is a Funchal institution. Come. I will lead you and you shall see for yourselves."

He addressed a sharp word to his prisoners, who started off along the lane. Apparently there was no need to handcuff them or take other precautions. Madeira is not a large island.

land and there was no prospect of them getting away from it. Besides, the policeman's hand hovered over his leather holster. He followed the three men, and Frank and Florence fell in behind.

They emerged on the main road and went down hill for a little way. Then they took another side turning.

After a few minutes' brisk walking they came to a collection of white houses. Before the door of one of these was drawn up a large wooden affair like a sort of super-toboggan. It had seats, and it was built on runners.

Teacher—"And so you see, children, love is the one thing you can give in abundance and still have plenty left."

Jimmy—"How about measles?"

A motorist was proceeding along one of the main roads of a small town in Staffordshire when the driver of a car in front suddenly turned to his right, down a side street.

After narrowly avoiding a collision, the motorist demanded to know why the coal man didn't put out his arm to indicate which way he was going.

"Don't be so daft," he replied, "I always go down that street."

Questions and Answers Concerning The War Time Prices and Trade Board Rulings

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other War time Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to the Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville, Ontario:—

Q.—Will it be necessary for me this year, as last, to count the number of my jelly jars and estimate my requirements of canning sugar?

A.—No, all such mathematical calculations are out this year. Every consumer will be allowed ten pounds of canning sugar by use of the first 10 spare F coupons becoming valid on dates to be announced.

Q.—As a "warbride" newly-arrived in Canada, how should I go about getting a ration book?

A.—Please apply to your Local Ration Board which will deal with your request.

Q.—I was asked to pay $3.50 a quarter-cord for mixed deadwood with a further 50c for delivery a short distance. Is that price according to the ceiling?

A.—No, your supplier is trying to overcharge you for this wood, the price being definitely above the ceiling fixed for your area. Moreover, delivery is included in the maximum selling-price authorized under the Fuelwood Order.

Q.—How can I tell if imported fresh fruits and vegetables are being sold at retail under ceiling prices?

A.—These prices are obtainable at your office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board and retailers are, moreover, required to display the size or weight and price of the article sold.

Q.—Do I still need to turn in a used metal tube when I buy tooth paste?

A.—No, that order has been rescinded on account of the small amount of tin now being incorporated in new tubes. Consumers are asked, however, to continue to turn in their old tubes wherever possible so that their tin content may be recovered.

Q.—When there seems to be such a surplus of meat in this country, why is its rationing continued?

A.—Such rationing is continued for the reason that it was originally imposed—to make any surplus available for consumption in the United Kingdom. At the moment, there is a temporary transportation difficulty which is leading to some congestion here.

Should it happen that any type or grade of meat cannot be taken by the United Kingdom, consideration will be given to ensure that any surplus in such types or grades shall be made available for domestic consumption.

Q.—Are any meat coupons good for the purchase of canned salmon?

A.—No, only those which have validity at the time of purchase.

Q.—Can I throw away my No. 3 ration book when the No. 4 book is issued?

A.—Not if you wish to become eligible for canning sugar next summer, as the first 10 spare F coupons in the No. 3 book are to be used for that purpose.

"Cats, my dear!" said the spinster. "I hate the very sight of them. I had a sweet little canary and some cat got that. I had a perfect parrot, and some cat got that. I had an adorable fiancé once, and—oh, don't mention cats to me!"

A wealthy woman asked an assistant in the wool department of a big shop for instructions on how to make a dog's sweater.

"How big is the dog?" asked the salesgirl. The woman's illustrations were not very successful.

"Maybe you'd better bring him in," suggested the girl.

"Oh, I can't do that," said the woman. "It's to be a surprise for him."

Western Ontario dairymen's convention heard an address on "How to Milk the Cow." Up here on our Parit Hill we're about to hear a whole raft of addresses on the larger issue of how to do same to the taxpayer.—T.D.F. in Ottawa Citizen.

WEST HUNTINGDON TOPPLES LEADERS

In one of the closest games of the season in the Rural League, West Huntingdon defeated Zion, the league leaders, 2-1 in the first game of a doubleheader at the Stirling Arena, on Tuesday night. It was anybody's game right up to the final whistle and both teams gave everything they had to win. Only two penalties, one to each team, were handed out by Referee Wallace.

The first period was scoreless, but West Huntingdon broke the ice at the five-minute mark in the second, with D. Farney registering on a pass from L. Sills. Zion tied the score half way through the period when "Doc" Empson beat Hagerman. Simms was given an assist on the play. Both teams missed plenty of chances to win the game in the early part of the final period and it was not until five minutes remained to be played that R. Sills scored what proved to be the winning counter on a pass from G. Pyear.

Sills notched one for Corbyville to put them back into the game but Waite again registered for the winners to make it 3-1. Corbyville continued to carry the play and were rewarded at the 15-minute mark by a goal by Carleton.

The second period went scoreless but the final had hardly opened when Huntingdon made sure of the game with a counter from C. Wright's stick. McNaughton Incident

When Canada's Minister of National Defence, Hon. J. L. Ralston, had addressed Parliament on the retirement of Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, former commander-in-chief of the Canadian Army overseas, there were only a little more than seventy-odd members in the House of Commons. There was a sudden dramatic absence of sound during the address on this so-called "McNaughton incident." This tense silence made a deep impression on observers with the fact that the present were exceedingly anxious to hear every word of the official explanation, particularly as the Minister told of two medical reports of the general's ill-health at the time, including one which had recommended "that he be relieved of all military responsibilities as soon as possible." Furthermore, he read a message written by Lt.-Gen. McNaughton to Major-General Montague, senior officer at Canadian Military Headquarters wherein the former commander-in-chief had stated in one part that "I have not the strength left to look after the Army properly" and in another part that "I must and will accept the situation with the best grace I can muster." In regard to inquiries about various rumours or stories on this "McNaughton incident," the Minister said in part: "I would prefer not to do so because such discussions can, to say the least, do no possible good, especially at times like these. If you ask whether General McNaughton and the Government were always in absolute agreement in everything, I would undoubtedly answer, 'No'. General McNaughton is a man of strong character and strong opinions. He is no 'yes' man." Then he declared amongst other things "that there should be at times divergence of views between the military and the Government is inevitable", though he emphasized that those differences of opinion have not interfered in any way with the loyal carrying out of plans when a decision has been made.

All-Important Conference

Though the sudden announcement in Parliament that the Federal Government would call another Dominion-Provincial Conference shortly came as a distinct surprise to the general public, yet it has been considered inevitable in usually well-informed quarters along Parliament Hill where for a long time insinuations have been heard of such a coming event. It is understood in the nation's capital that this Conference would attempt to clear up and to solve problems involving both the Federal Administration and the Provincial Governments particularly where questions of jurisdiction are concerned between the central and provincial authorities. On the last occasion of such a conference, much more had been written and spoken about the likely accomplishments of such a Conference than had been achieved. Indeed, the last Dominion-Provincial Conference in Ottawa had even failed to answer many questions. On this new occasion of this latest Conference, it is said that the Federal Government may endeavor to find out in such a gathering how and to what extent the Provincial Governments will be willing to co-operate in order to carry out Canada's ambitious plans connected with the period of reconstruction and social security after this war, with the constitution providing that there shall be a limitation of jurisdiction between the Government in Ottawa and the Provinces. Moreover, the heavy financial problems of new reconstruction and social security plans after the war for the entire nation must be considered and such problems must be solved in line with the Federal Government's constitutional relations with these Provinces.

Start in the Right Direction

Throughout World War II the Canadian Government has made every possible effort to improve this country's relations in this hemisphere and inter-American relations have attracted more and more deep study of the authorities in Ottawa, especially since the recent occurrences in Argentina, Bolivia, etc., so that it has been of more than the usual interest to learn that a special Canada-Brazil Fund has been created now by the Canadian Inter-American Association for the expressed purpose of improving the relations between Canada and this Latin-American country. This Fund will be used to help actions involving scholarships for students of the two nations, exchange of teachers or professors, art exhibits, stimulation of the languages of these countries, and such other moves as may be deemed advisable in this start in the right direction for the betterment of Canada's relations with Latin-America.

City Farmers

It may be difficult to believe but it is true that urban residents of Canada's metropolis, Montreal, operating 226 "victory gardens" in their spare time were able to raise a variety of farm products totalling no less than $77,910 during 1943, that is in the past twelve months.

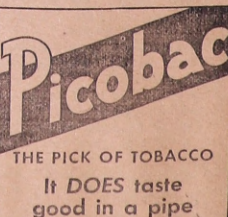

Surprising Scarcity

There has been no doubt, an expert has revealed, that the man-in-the-street in this country has been surprised to learn that there has been a scarcity of forest products in Canada during this World War II, though so much of this country's land area is covered with forests. Indeed, an expert view has shown that, if necessary manpower was available, Canada's forests would be required to supply 30,000,000 cords of forest products each year to meet the demands for lumber, pulp, paper and fuelwood requirements, representing one of the most important factors in this country's national economy and bringing to this country in the past over $150,000,000 of favourable foreign exchange.

Directives on Censorship

The directives on censorship and radio, which were requested in the last session of Parliament, have been produced. Incidentally, another return in the House of Commons has shown that the director of censorship, Col. O. M. Bigger, who is also chairman of the Canadian section of the Canada-United States Defence Board, has received no salary, though his return reported that the law firm of Smart & Bigger has been paid $22,342 by the Government for legal services since September 1, 1939. Col. O. M. Bigger is a member of this law firm.

For conspiring with others in the illegal use of ration coupons, Benoit Levasseur, Shawinigan Falls, Que., was sentenced to pay $200 or serve three months in jail.
